

New planets PAGE 3

Aid: a failing grade PAGE 11

Cohousing PAGE 14

How ethical is ethical oil? PAGE 20

REDEEMER UNIVERSITY COLLEGE LIBRARY

CHRISTIAN COURIER PER/BX/9401/.C36

APR 2 3 2012

A Reformed Biweekly | 66th Year of Publication | April 23, 2012 | NO. 2935 | $2.

www.christiancourier.ca

Short-term missions: what's the long-term impact?

Meagan Gillmore

got there.

When Jessica Blackett decided were different.

"We're sitting there looking at bad about it,' but then we meet the Everything changed once she people, I've never met a happier group of people."

Blackett, along with nine other to travel to Asamankese, Ghana, she students from Redeemer University knew she was going to experience College in Hamilton, Ont., travelled another culture. She knew she to Ghana last May with EduDeo would see poverty. After all, that's Ministries, formerly Worldwide over a week. what most people told her about Christian Schools - Canada as a Africa: stories of poverty and dying member of one of their HANDS children. And the buildings she saw teams. HANDS teams, which stands inviting others into similar ones. in Ghana were broken, made of old for Helping Another Nation Develop wood and metal. But the people Schools, join with individuals in Changing times, changing developing nations to help build Christian schools. Blackett's team [the poverty] going, 'It's so sad,'" continued the work of a previous she remembers. "There's a small team. They mixed cement and part of us going, 'Oh, we feel so mortar, and helped paint the walls. developed after World War II, these trips and scholarly attention

She began preparing early in the school year, when a girl in her dorm told her about a similar trip she'd gone on. Blackett and her team devoted their entire school year to fundraising and preparing for their trip to Ghana. She was there for just

Almost a year later, she says, she's still learning from the experience and methods

But this model of ministry isn't as simple as boarding a plane and building a school. Originally EduDeo Ministries sends mission teams to developing nations to help build Christian schools.

short-term missions have changed dramatically. Evaluating the impact of such trips is, at the very least, difficult. Despite resources for those preparing to lead and participate in on the subject, much about the trips remains unknown.

T.V. Thomas, Director of the Centre for Evangelism and World Missions in Regina, notes See Short-term missions on p. 2

Youth, young adults and the state of the church

Mike Wagenman

The challenging calling of a campus minister is to stand in the space between the church and the university. It's a space filled with unbearable tension: tension because these two worlds are assumed to be so different; unbearable because it's a space often marked by a deep feeling of homelessness. And yet, it is a place of enormous creative potential. God's people have consistently found the wilderness to be a place where God is encountered anew and where we are formed as God's very own people.

But this feeling of disorientation is not the exclusive experience of campus ministers. In fact, many have pointed out how our us from each other, from the effective at communicating the gospel?

Jules-Alexis Muenier's painting La leçon de cathéchisme (the catechism contemporary world disconnects lesson). Are the formal ministry structures we've relied on for years still even from God. Churches are people feel spiritually homeless. wondering today what their future altogether) for a variety of reasons. persuasively. Over the past few years, though, Let me unpack my observations the stories of frustration, abuse, and what I mean by our church and disillusionment have been

Creation, from ourselves, and increasing. More and more young

And we're all frantically will look like, given the way things asking the question, "Why?" Into are trending. And many Christians the mix of all answers that have - young and old alike - feel a deep been suggested, I'd like to offer sense of disconnection from home another possibility. It seems to me congregations and cultural forms that the current ministries of the of Christian piety they once knew. church, which took shape about The awkward privilege I 50 years ago, no longer connect have on campus is being given with the North American culture the honour of listening to the young people are socialized into stories of many people's joys and today. And if the church wants disappointments with the church. to connect with youth and young I'm perceived as a safe person to adults today, it needs to learn a confess to. I talk daily with those new institutional language which who love their church as well as can communicate the gospel those who have left church (or faith authentically, powerfully, and that determining how many people participate in these trips and the costs involved are nearly impossible. In his experience, many short-term mission trips are conducted by local churches rather than large mission agencies. Local congregations may not be as keen on keeping statistical records. Charles Cook, Professor of Global Studies and Mission at Ambrose University College and Chair of the Global Missions Roundtable of the Evangelical Fellowship of Canada, estimates approximately 16,000 to 18,000 Canadians travel on these trips each year. Participants vary across ages.

See State of the church on p. 2

News

Short-term missions continued

The uncertainty comes partly from the changing definitions of short-term mission work. A few decades ago, three months, six months or a year were considered short trips. Now, the definition may include anything less than two years. "[Before, it was] never eight days, 10 days," says Thomas. "That's a major shift."

some ways, became recruitment tools.

Coordinator for EduDeo Ministries, often hears objections to sending high school students overseas. He admits they may not have the most skills or experience. But when it comes to exposing students to the work of the church worldwide, "absolutely it's worth it because the short-term missions trips will be with and will influence these young people's lives." He knows the work he does today stems partly from his own short-term missions experience in college.

Who benefits?

invest in short-term missions. Perhaps because congregants take the time to get to know them."

When people get to know people and build relationships, real change happens.

can afford to travel, have become a discipleship tool, a way of igniting a passion missions."

The personal nature and benefits of short-term missions work raises questions about the wisdom of investing thousands of dollars in overseas work. Those involved in This is not the only shift that's happened. According planning and evaluating short-term missions trips agree that needs to be evident. "It's hard for me to believe that people to Thomas, from the 1960s to the mid-'80s most short- goals need to be clearly defined. When the primary goals term missionaries were college students or older. Sending are personal discipleship and preparation for local ministry, teenagers on trips, the exception rather than the rule, first it may be harder to justify the trips. As Cook points out, began in the United States. Missions agencies began investing numerous opportunities for cross-cultural experiences exist in short-term missions trips in the mid-'70s. These trips, in within Canada. Overseas short-term missions trips require an already existing tourism structure to be in place, which And for some, they work. Tim Bootsma, the HANDS Teams means participants may never travel to less-exposed areas of the world. And if they never take an initial trip to such a country, it's less likely they'll do so in other contexts.

Besides, economic disparity between those who go on trips and those they minister to can produce attitudes which may result in the trip causing more harm than good. Bootsma describes it as a "God-complex," an attitude of, "We're Christians, and we're from the developed world, therefore we know what's best for others.' Just that attitude will come across to the people that they are going there to help, and just that attitude will reinforce what these communities There are other reasons people travel on these trips, and have felt so often, whether that's through the colonial era, these are more ambiguous. Most participants come from whether that's through their local government," he explains. Western nations. Even in the majority world, Thomas notes, "Poor communities are often reduced to a statistic. They're it is churches from richer countries, like Singapore, who overlooked. Their voice is not heard. And few people actually

When people do get to know people and build relationships, short-term missions Bootsma argues, real change happens.

Evaluating lasting change

Evaluating the change is difficult, but possible. When for ministry in the Kurt Ver Beek, Assistant Professor of Sociology at Calvin lives of those who College and director of the college's Semester in Honduras go. As Cook notes, program, began studying the long-term effects of short-term "A lot of churches missions on sending agencies, receiving communities and are using short- participants, he expected to discover the trips did more term missions as a harm than good to host communities. He was pleasantly way to personalize surprised. But he believes the trips are about long-term change for everyone involved. Long-term change in a host community, he says, will happen through the work of local churches and organizations.

> For trip participants, the value will be seen after. But it were changed if you can't see it," Ver Beek says. He echoes concerns of these trips simply being a form of tourism. Participants need to have clear goals of how they will live differently once they return. They need to stay accountable for making those changes.

> Blackett's trip to Ghana continues to change her. She and her teammates stay in contact with individuals they met. She's learned to listen to others more and not try to fix all their problems. More than anything, it's left her with a deeper understanding of God's love and a desire for a stronger faith. When comparing her faith with the people she met in Ghana, she concludes, "Every one of us [on the team] kind of came out there basically with more of a fresh new look about who God is and our desire to know him better."

Meagan Gillmore (meagan.gillmore@hotmail.com) travelled to Europe on short-term missions trips in high school. This gave her a foundation for leading Bible studies during university and living in community after graduation. They also made her more intentional about studying Scripture and investing in community - and reflective about how to make disciples of Jesus.

State of the church continued

ministries being disconnected from today's youth culture. I call this the "curriculum model" of faith formation. person living in the present.

It makes sense that our church ministries are like school the very Christian worldview it seeks to impart. subjects - we in the Reformed tradition do education well. series of lessons like links in a chain that need to be mastered (or Christian day school).

Curriculum model

Let's reflect together on how we currently attempt to engage In this model, we know the end product or outcome we To add to the problem, much of our orientation in the in discipleship at the congregational level. What comes to want to produce in the future and everything we do is aimed Christian Reformed Church and in many of our local mind when we think about our current practice of raising at getting youth and young adults from wherever they congregations is rooted in the past (the immigration experience, youth and young adults in the faith? Probably Christian are now to that point in the future. The problem is that a historical theological battles, etc.) and we have this carry-over day school, youth group/catechism, and profession of faith. curriculum (Christian or otherwise) can become merely an curriculum model of Christian formation whose content These are our formal ministry structures (in church and in impersonal mechanical system in order to effectively and seems more about the theological battles and documents partnership with the school) to disciple youth in the faith. efficiently achieve a desired outcome (rooted in an economic of the 16th and 17th centuries rather than the questions or But have you ever reflected on how these ministries are worldview). Christian ministry and life rooted in this kind struggles of living as Christ's ambassadors in today's culture. structured? How are they set up to function? If you think of curriculum framework struggles to be anything other than The result is often that we present a version of the Christian about it, the way we do Christian education, youth group/ future-oriented, goal-focused, means-driven. It devolves faith which is more concerned with historically accurate and catechism, and profession of faith is very academic. It's like into a fossilized system that has lost its connected-from-life-today biblical or theological tidbits a series of courses we herd children through over the years. cultural or historical context in which it operates. It betrays rather than a holistic formation of the heart and Christian

I think something that our kids know about this method between now and graduation to make the goal a reality. We model of youth and young adult ministry is rooted in a quo. But this is a model of faith formation that want our children to have information in their brains and we progress myth that we'll all arrive on the conveyor-belt of will take another edition to fully flesh out. Stay assume that this will make them faithful followers of Jesus. church ministry to a fine, upstanding Christian adult faith tuned. This is how faith formation goes. And I see little difference commitment. A curriculum model of discipleship is based between classes at university and these "classes" at church on a mechanical worldview - that we can somehow control the levers of the universe by doing this here, doing that there.

But it's really dislocated from being attentive to the whole desires that are faithfully relevant and responsive to today.

In contrast to what I'm calling a "curriculum model" of But think about what we're communicating when we use (and that is an actual betrayal of what faith formation, I would like to pursue an alternative model an educational model for spiritual formation or discipleship. all about) is that it sacrifices listening to our kids in the present — a model which is focussed on and rooted in Christ alive in Think about the way a course is set up. The teacher knows in order to have a goal-oriented fixation (or "money-back- the present, that isn't manipulative or mechanical, that isn't ahead of time where he or she wants the students to end up guarantee") on the future. In the most extreme forms of this guided by assumed ends and artificial means, that is open and (the end product or outcome) and we construct a system kind of approach, we stop caring about what's going on in generous to the culture around us while at the same time being of different stages or steps that work forward step-by-step the details of our kids' lives today as long as they turn out rooted and grounded in King Jesus. I'm pursuing a model of from the beginning to that future goal we have established. A as responsible and acceptable Christian adults in the future. faith formation which has its eyes wide open to possibility Unfortunately, when imported to the church, a curriculum and change, not just static rote memorization of the status

Mike Wagenman is the Director of The Kuyper Centre for Emerging Scholars (kuypercentre.ca) at Western University.

Column

Multiple planets

Recent astronomy findings have suggested that planets are more common than was first apparent. It has been suggested that, in fact, there may be more planets than stars - which are themselves, as we can all appreciate, almost uncountable. Our star has multiple planets, and if this is the case for many stars, then there may be many planets in the universe.

These findings are based on analysis of the NASA space telescope Kepler. This spacecraft, named after the astronomer Johannes Kepler, was specially designed to determine the number and nature of planets found around stars in our area of the Milky Way. The satellite was launched in 2009 and, according to a NASA briefing last December, has identified 2,326 candidate planets, 207 of which appear to be similar to Earth. Based on these findings, it is estimated that about 5.4 percent of all stars may host Earth-like planets.

The findings of this spacecraft have puzzled scientists, because they seem to contradict predictions based on current models of planetary systems. In particular, there appear to be too many larger planets, and they are in the wrong place to Mars and, in future, to Venus is to look for molecules - too close to the star. These planets have come to be called indicative of past or current life. It has also been suggested "super-earths," and they will require changes in theories of that life may be found on Saturn's moon Titan or other moons. planet formation. This model development is not uncommon in a scientific field based largely on observations, and scientists expect that as observatory instruments become more powerful and produce additional findings, further revisions of theories will prove necessary.

The large number of planets obviously raises questions relevant for all Earthlings, particularly for Christians: are we alone in the universe? Is there life elsewhere in creation, or are we unique, with human beings created in God's image solely on Earth? What makes these questions interesting is that we appear to be on the threshold of finding the empirical evidence to answer them. One of the chief tasks of the spaceships sent If molecules suggestive of life are found in any of these places, it will strengthen the hypothesis that life exists outside the solar system as well. If no evidence of life can be found in our planetary system, then the search will be more difficult and the questions probably not answered in the foreseeable future, given the distance of the nearest stars.

NASA has discovered more than 2000 new planets in recent years, more than 200 of which appear to be similar to earth.

The Catholic Church, through the Vatican's Pontifical Academy of Science, has been exploring the ramifications this question both for humans in general and more particularly for Christians. Father Funes, the director of the Vatican Observatory near Rome, has suggested that intelligent beings created by God could exist in outer space. While he is careful to point out that the official church has not formally addressed this issue, his personal opinion is that intelligent life elsewhere will not contradict belief in God. The Catholic Church as an institution has come a long way from the time of Galileo in facing potential issues raised by science.

The possibility of life elsewhere in the universe need not pose a significant problem for Christians; such life would simply reflect the richness of God's creative acts. The linked question, whether intelligent or morally aware life forms exist elsewhere in the creation, would have more controversial implications depending on what was discovered. It might require Christians to clarify what we mean by the intervention of the Godhead into our creation in the person of Jesus. How do we view the life, death and resurrection of the Son of God in Jerusalem on the planet Earth about 2,000 years ago?

Fortunately, it is unlikely that we will have to answer this question any time soon. While astronomers may discover evidence of life outside the solar system in the next 50 years, evidence of intelligent life - such as radio-type signals, which are currently being explored with radio telescopes - is more difficult to discern.

Thus, for now at least, we image-bearers can rest peacefully in the knowledge that God so loved this world that his Son came, died, and rose to unite us with him.

Rudy Eikelboom (reikelboom@wlu.ca), who likes to speculate about questions that Christians may face in the future, is a member of the Waterloo CRC and Chair of the Psychology Department at Wilfrid Laurier University.

The deepest place on earth

The specially designed submarine that filmmaker James Cameron used to explore Challenger Deep.

Trevor Quirk, Christian Science Monitor

James Cameron, the Canadian director of Titanic, Avatar and, let's not forget, The Abyss, recently emerged from his 35,756-foot dive to the Challenger Deep.

The Challenger Deep is the lowest point in the Mariana Trench, a gap between tectonic plates that stretches 1,500 miles along the western Pacific, and is thought to be the deepest chasm in all the world's oceans. At the bottom the pressure reaches over 15,000 pounds per square inch. By comparison, everyday pressure levels hover around 15 pounds per square inch.

How do we know that Challenger Deep is the deepest point on earth? Can we be sure that there isn't a deeper spot somewhere?

We can't. Not absolutely. The Challenger Deep was first measured by the HMS Challenger expedition in 1875, a nearly 70,000-mile scientific voyage around the globe that laid the foundations for the modern science of oceanography. To probe the ocean's depths, the Challenger's crew used simple lead weights tethered by long ropes. For this purpose, the vessel carried 144 miles of rope. The first reported depth was 26,850 feet.

In 1951, that figure increased to 35,761 feet when another royal vessel, also named the HMS Challenger, re-measured the depth using a primitive form of sonar. a pulse of sound sent deep to bounce off the abyss, then back topside to the researchers awaiting its return. The official depth would change a few more times after, most recently set at 36,070 feet, a figure confirmed with modern sonar techniques.

This number has a margin of error of about 100 feet, so it's possible that the measured depth of the Challenger Deep could change in the future, or that some other deeper point will be discovered somewhere else. After all, it was only in 1997 that researchers discovered the Sirena Deep, which is also located in the Mariana Trench, which they measured at 35,210 feet, less than a thousand feet shallower than the Challenger Deep.

But it's probably unlikely that we'll find a new deepest point in an entirely different part of the world. Bathymetry, the science of underwater topography, has long been using sophisticated sonar equipment to create digital maps of underwater terrain. Sonar beams sent to the ocean floor are updated many times per second, and verified by Global Positioning Satellites. These maps clearly indicate the Mariana Trench as the deepest of its kind, and so far the Challenger Deep is its lowest measured point. Chances are, if the depth or the location of the world's deepest point ever does change, it won't be by much.

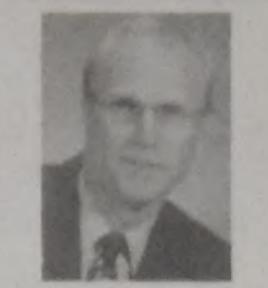

Not investing with Confidence? Perhaps it is time you do.

In my 20th year as a Certified Financial Planner professional with Investors Group, I have over $53,000,000*

Let's Talk

in managed assets

"As of February 29, 2012

Senior Financial Consultant

1-800-488-9817 519-871-7946

The Plan

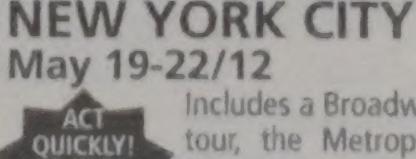

ign up with

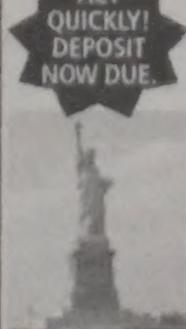

posit by April

5th and receive

free airbus or

VERSTRAETE TRAVEL & CRUISES 2012 Escorted Motorcoach Tours by Earl Clint

Includes a Broadway play, guided city Explore Corner Brook, Cow Head, tour, the Metropolitan Museum of St. Anthony, L'Anse-aux-Meadows and Gros Art, an evening harbour cruise with Morne National Park on the west coast, then Avenue including Rockefeller Center, Chinatown, Little Italy, The Intrepid Art and Space Museum etc. Including | entry fees, hotel, bus and three meals. Cost: $845 p.p.(dbl occ.) Final cut-off date is April 18/12.

NEWFOUNDLAND July 5-13/12

view of the Statue of Liberty, Empire to Twillingate, Bonavista, Trinity, Clarenville, Cape St. Mary's and St. State Building Observatory, Fifth John's Includes all entry fees, Tablelands fjord, iceberg and whale & pulfin boat tours, three dinner theatres, a "Screech", city tour, hotels, porterage, return airfare from Toronto, bus and 16 meals. Cost: $2845.00 p.p. tax inc. (dbl. occ.). Deposit by April 30/12. Final cut-off date is June 1/12.

OTHER TOURS: Orillia & Midland - June 27-28 • Chicago - Aug. 24-27 Lancaster, PA - Sept. 25-27
 N. & S. Carolina - Oct. 18-27

DAY TRIPS: June 2 - "42nd Street" at the Stratford Festival Aug. 9 - "Big Band Legends" in St. Jacobs, Oct. 3 - Cruising & Cranberries in Muskoka

For a detailed brochure, contact Earl Clint at 905-563-0199 or earl.c@sympatico.ca • www.verstraetetravel.com Verstraete Travel, 36 Secord Drive, St. Catharines, ON L2N 1K8 Ph: 905-934-4414 • Ont. Reg. #4245411

PAGE 4

Editorials

Of grandmothers and ostriches

May Drost

I carry a childhood memory of my grandmother coming to the farm in early spring to first time after a winter stabled indoors. In my mind's eye, I remember her smiling as the cattle ran, or maybe even kicked up their heels, at being set free to enjoy a banquet of spring grass. Picture it: old lady in a shapeless black dress and little round glasses accompanied by small child enjoying the sunshine. Norman Rockwell might have taken out his artist brushes had he been there to see! And though I acknowledge that I may well have bathed this scene in rose-coloured sentimentality, I'm sure I didn't make it up, and I'm sure it had more significance for my grandmother than could be produced by pretty calendar make an elderly lady so happy?

My grandmother, born in the 19th century, had only a very unaware of such terms as Newtonian physics, clockwork daily basis. All this prods us to ask old questions in new ways. In universe, biological determinism, natural selection. The concept of global warning would have been unbelievable to her: God would never let that happen! Though she was no doubt affected by the usual adversities that all humans are heir to (Man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward!) her world was more constant and predictable than ours is today. It would not have occurred to her to wonder at what point in the history of planet Earth cows were domesticated, or when our ancestral huntergatherers turned to farming. To learn that the major constant in the universe is constant change would have unsettled her.

Today, many Christians are deeply suspicious of and fearful about the things scientists are discovering. Understandable! What are the implications of an ever-expanding universe? What if Adam and Eve were not the first humans, but merely archetypal figures in the story of the Creator's relationship with humanity? To learn that humans share over 90 percent of their genetic material with apes does not help bolster the notion that humans are the keepers of the universe! As new discoveries are made giving rise to new questions, many contemporary Christians are becoming more and are pulling the rug out from under us, and it has to stop!

understanding of the universe together. Darwin understood what a

Christian Courier

Founded in 1945

An independent biweekly that seeks to engage creatively in critical Christian journalism, connecting Christians with a network of culturally savvy partners in faith for the purpose of inspiring all to participate in God's renewing work within his fallen creation.

EDITORIAL TEAM & PRODUCTION STAFF Interim Editor: Michael Buma editor@christiancourier.ca Features Editor: Cathy Smith cathy@christiancourier.ca Church Page Editor: Marian Van Til marianvantil@roadrunner.com Review Editor: Nick Schuurman reviews@christiancourier.ca Contributing Editor: Bert Witvoet bert.witvoet@sympatico.ca Contributing Editor: Angela Reitsma Bick angela@christian.ca Admin/ads/web: Ineke Medcalf-Strayer ads@christiancourier.ca Circulation: Rose der Nederlanden rose@christiancourier.ca

The publication of comments, opinions or advertising does not imply agreement or endorsement by Christian Courier or the publisher. Please contact circulation if you cannot afford the subscription price but want to receive Christian Couner. The paper is published the second and fourth Mondays of the month.

Christian Courier 5 Joanna Dr

Tel: 905-682-8311 1-800-969-4838

St Catharines ON L2N 1V1 Web site: christiancourier.ca We acknowledge the financial support of the Government of Canada through the Canada Periodical Fund of the Department of Canadian Heritage.

Patrimoine

sea change his discoveries would make in humanity's perception of the world and its history, and was reluctant to publish his findings. The Christian church, both past and present, has often operated on watch as the cows were let out to pasture for the the premise that "shoot the messenger" is the best way to deal with new information requiring change. This, though understandable, is lamentable nonetheless. It makes me sad to think that scientists and theologians in our own midst like Howard VanTill, John Schneider and Dan Harlow are reprimanded, even vilified for their honest and pioneering scholarship, and are often unsupported by the Christian communities in which they live and work.

We can't go back

We cannot go back to my grandmother's day. The Earth is round, not flat, whether we like it or not. The Earth is not the centre of art. It's fair to ask though: What was special about a few cows the universe, much as we would like it to be. Supernovas, dark being let out of their stalls in springtime and why did watching matter, black holes are real. Many writers on the subject suggest that we may not only be made of dust, but stardust! Stunning fossil records attest to the age of the tiny planet we live on. Researchers basic education, except in Scripture. She would have been are making new discoveries about the human brain almost on a

Consider the ostrich: this strange bird seems to suggest that God had fun designing the world.

this regard, time is relentless, but also encouraging. We can't go back, but we can choose to move forward. We can view science and Scripture as mortal enemies, or we can trust in the timeless truths of Scripture to give us the courage to explore the universe with creativity, enthusiasm and joy. What could we possibly discover that would threaten the reality of a transcendent God in love with his creation?

The book of Job is startling in its emphasis on God's interest in the natural world. Job, having lost everything worth having in life, finally gets an interview with God. Does God tell him, "Poor Job, I feel bad that you're in this predicament, and I'll explain why it had to happen"? Not at all. God presents himself more spiritually fidgety, thinking that scientists and other scholars as the undisputed ruler of a seemingly wild and random universe full of fearsome wild beasts and exotic creatures, not to mention Scientific discovery not withstanding, human nature will win storms and other cataclysmic events. Nothing seems orderly or out and there is nothing new under the sun. Copernicus and Galileo predictable. The ostrich, for example, is depicted as a typical paid a big price for their discoveries. Isaac Newton seems to have bird brain who hasn't the sense to look after her young properly been unable to bring his scientific discoveries and his mystical (Job 39:13-18). Her wings, which she "flaps joyfully" aren't as beautiful as a stork's, but boy, can she run! Dare we say that in spite of his power and majesty God had fun designing the world? Better question: Should we, co-creatures with behemoths and conies, take any less delight in it?

> And isn't part of the fun discovering as much as we can about ourselves and our world? Just maybe, the more we discover about the universe, the more we will learn about its Creator. Where is the risk in that? "Nearly everything we know about the supernatural world" says Philip Yancey in A Skeptic's Guide to Faith "comes filtered through the ordinary, natural world." I don't know about the theology of this, but I like to think of the world as a sort of conduit through which we can experience God. Just as a painting leads the viewer to see beyond what is explicit in colour and shape, so the physical world testifies to what lies behind and beyond itself.

> Back to my grandmother. She may not have known much about science or an ever-changing universe, but she understood what is most needful: that there is an eternal Spring as well as a natural one; that there can be delight in the changing of the seasons and in animals being set free; that the warmth of sunshine sometimes envelops us like a security blanket. Maybe, for the moment, being alive in that place at that time, she was just happy! God can do that for us sometimes. I treasure the memory.

> > May Drost (mdrostl@cogeco.ca) is a retired teacher of English who lives in Sarnia, Ontario.

Sowing gender confusion in malleable minds

Bert Witvoet

Public schools in the Toronto area have to follow the curriculum set by the Toronto District School Board for its 600 schools. That in itself is not unusual or bad. What should give us cause for concern, however, is the kind of human rights education to which young and impressionable children are exposed. All schools must follow the course prescriptions for Kindergarten through Grade 3 that include the indoctrination called LGBTQ - lesbian, gay, bisexual, transsexual/twospirited, queer issues.

Forced compliance

During their human rights classes, young children are encouraged to question their own gender and sexuality. They are asked to role-play opposite roles – boys play girls and girls play boys. Teachers are asked to read some traditional folk tales and fairy tales with the class and have students write or illustrate their own "gender bending" versions of these tales (Snow White falling in love with Cinderella?). Teachers are instructed to read from Gloria goes to Gay Pride. If this storybook is not available, they are to cut out a photo from a newspaper or magazine of the Pride Parade, where all the LGBTQ sexual expressions are celebrated. In addition, these 4- to 9-year-old students are asked to discuss the significance of Toronto's annual Pride Week celebrations. One can guess what kind of opinion is considered acceptable and what kind is deemed unacceptable. Students are then asked to make posters for the Toronto District School Board float and/or school bus that are in the Pride Parade. In addition, students can organize their own Pride Parade in their school. One wonders how much nudity will be allowed to do justice to the theme.

Can a parent seek to have their child excused from these kinds of lessons? The answer is a firm NO. Can teachers be excused from teaching it if their conscience won't allow them? NO. "Teachers are obligated to address all equity issues. Any omissions that maintain a non-inclusive curriculum and pedagogy are considered to foster a poisoned environment" (quoted from the TDSB curriculum guidelines).

Sinister aim

Some understanding soul may argue that the purpose of this curriculum is to break down the walls of suspicion and hostility between those who are straight and those who are not. Surely that must be seen as a noble and generous goal. That may indeed be the case at one level of the issue. Nobody, least of all a Christian, wants to build walls of suspicion and hostility between people. But where the issue becomes oppressive is at a deeper level of spiritual and moral development. Nobody has the right to impose normative expectations on a child without the approval of its parent(s).

This, of course is the conundrum for public education in a pluralistic society. The public school cannot represent the public in spite of its lofty goals as expressed on the Toronto District School Board website - "Our Trustees ... are advocates for education and are the voice of the public, ensuring all concerns are addressed." If you seriously weigh

Letters

Contract conflicts in Christian schools

Allow me to add four observations to the joining gossip factions. CC discussion on whether or not Christian a positive proposal.

It seems to me that John Tamming is others. arguing for a new understanding of the role more deliberate, quicker and contemporary staffing changes. While John Vriend agrees with the new demands on boards, his proposal to implement more collective agreements would curtail this new direction to manage change, as it does in the public schools now. guarantee job security as well.

worked, even in the good old days. Where school board performance. it was tried it merely created widespread angst and recriminations, with everybody

Bert Witvoet's call for ethical decision school boards across Canada do a good making is on the mark, but that definition of job in hiring and firing teachers (see CC ethos is too simple by itself. I heard those March 26, Feb. 13 and Dec. 12, 2011). As original Unionville lectures and was not another person who was heavily involved impressed with VonMeyenfeldt's rather in many of these disputes over the last three utopian view of community. Trust is very decades on the side of the school boards, important in any workplace, but when let me try to add to this complex topic with the budget continues to bleed red some relationships become more important than

It seems to me that the discussion needs of school boards, namely a proactive one that to be broadened if we are to arrive at a can set clear and probably new directions for more biblically sensitive workplace that the future of their schools. One of the issues can handle normal employment disputes involved would be the quality of instruction. ethically. Many of the Christian solutions Addressing this requires the power to make that I have heard reflect the same onesided appeal to love and forgiveness as the magic answer to all conflicts. Especially the misreading of Matthew 18 has created false expectations of reinstatement as a required consequence of being ethical.

I strongly believe that this evangelical It's tough to make necessary changes and bias needs to be balanced by a new commitment to the importance of justice John Joosse's discomfort with the new as a basic norm for social relationships, management direction at the OACS high especially contractual ones. Perhaps CC schools stems partly from his commitment can encourage a discussion of basic rights to the old consensus model of decision for all the educational parties involved, making inherited from the CRC. While boards and students too, not just the his ideal of community togetherness calls teachers. Once we appreciate the main for the involvement of all stakeholders dimensions of the problem, then we will in management decisions, this seldom achieve a good standard for assessing the validity of such a claim, you realize that it lacks integrity: "The voice of the public?" Who is the public? "Ensuring all concerns are addressed"? What is that supposed to mean?

> Adrian Guldemond, Ancaster, Ont.

Sowing gender confusion continued

But the most serious objection many will have is that to break down the walls of hostility you have to buy into the worldview of those who consider every possible sexual preference to be a positive expression of self or of love. In Toronto it's educational peace on terms set by Gay Pride ... or graduation based on a contract signed LGBTQ.

The Toronto District School Board has instituted mandatory LGBTQ curriculum in its 600 schools.

Ominous indicators

The harsh irony of this exclusive inclusivity seems to escape the leading lights at the Toronto public school system. The question for other school jurisdictions is how far are we from seeing this kind of curriculum being imposed on all public schools in the country? And how far are we from seeing alternative schools being forbidden to teach their own curricular version of human rights and gender education? In Quebec, for example, all schooling - public, private, home schooling - must teach the ethics and religion course as spelled out by the ministry of education. (Quebec's Ethics and Religious Culture program became mandatory for schools in May 2008.) And throughout Canada Christian higher institutions are already feeling the pinch of non-recognition by their secular peers because of the former's view of what constitutes inappropriate sexual behaviour.

So how far are Canadian schools from being squeezed into teaching concepts their teachers and parents reject from out of their faith and worldview? The answer, my friends, is blowing in the blustery winds that emanate from 5050 Yonge Street in Toronto, where Canada's largest school board (and the fourth-largest board in North America), legislates what attitudes toward gender issues 250,000 students need to adopt in their formative years.

Bert Witvoet taught at Harbord Collegiate under the Toronto District School Board for six years in the '70s as well as having been in the Christian school system for 12 years, before he became editor of Calvinist Contact, later known as Christian Courier. He lives in St. Catharines, Ontario, where for 10 years he was editor of the Christian Educators Journal during his retirement.

Comment

Christian schools: a response to Joosse, Vriend and Witvoet

John Tamming

Regarding the issue of Christian school teachers and the pursuit of excellence, I thank John Joosse, John Vriend and Bert Witvoet for engaging - however barely - in this discussion (see CC March 26, Feb. 13 and Dec. 12, 2011).

Our schools are withering. Many have closed altogether. A declining birth rate is a good part of it, but not the entire story by far. People are voting with their feet. I commend boards for not standing on form. I commend them when they finally decide to act on difficult personnel issues to ensure that their schools remain attractive, compelling beacons of educational excellence (again, when staff are let go, it must be done decently and with robust financial compensation).

offer an education "second to none." If one by students and parents alike. I don't know doubts that bromide, no problem, as Joosse blithely mentions that there are mediocre to be outdone, Witvoet invokes covenantal that does not make it so. theology. He argues that a board may never break an employment contract (and, indeed, administrator who has mailed it in for years may never replace a contract with another containing lesser protections). For added emphasis, he concludes that "we destroy each other when we act unethically." So, Dear Board, unless you have a serious disciplinary issue that triggers mediation/arbitration (and the merely incompetent or hapless will never hit that threshold), seniority rules and there is not a thing you can do about it.

None of these responses are adequate to the crisis facing our schools. If we are to ask families to pony up north of $22,000 per year to support kids in both elementary way streets, after all, as even a cursory reading of Deuteronomy suggests.

These three writers are suspicious of my use of the word excellence. Why? I wrote that in my personal and professional experience over the last 20 years, many administrators do a very poor job of supervising teachers and school boards too often show compassion for the teacher rather than compassion for those generations of students who are forced to endure incompetence and (yes) sloth.

I suggested that every three years a board ask of a teacher (through professional evaluations, including student and parental feedback): Is she competent to teach or is the calculus just not sticking with the pupils? Is he passionate about his craft or is he mailing it in with 10 year-old notes? Does he have what it takes to help mould young citizens of the kingdom, or does he think that having a "kingdom vision," a membership in ICS and a volume of Ridderbos on the shelf is sufficient?

Joosse dismisses this as applying secular business values to Christian schools. Say what? My critics might know of callous boards that have, for the sake of a $15,000 salary spread, fired outstanding, committed Vriend assures us that OACS schools and imaginative teachers who were loved of any such board actions. The terminated teacher might comfort himself with the people in every institution. So, whatever. Not thought that money drove the decision but

> In my experience, it is the teacher or - and who, as such, has consistently broken covenant - well before things finally come to a crisis point. The termination is simply a formal acknowledgement that promises to the school (to be competent and interested in your craft) have been broken for a very long time.

I admit that I do not care for seniority in general, and I particularly object to such when it comes to our Christian institutions. Appeals to theological language (whether compassion or covenant or the idea of ordination) can be, as with patriotism, a last and flimsy refuge. In our churches, we allow melancholic pastors to and secondary, schools have a covenantal drag down the faith of our teens for a decade obligation (right back at you, Bert) to ensure - and we wonder why the youth are straying. that all staff are dedicated and competent In our schools, we reason that "oh, he's not Christian professionals. Covenants are two that bad," and allow this to be the standard for some of our teachers. And we wonder why over half our parents don't bother sending their kids to Christian schools.

I note that my three interlocutors are all former long time teachers within OACS schools. I get who speaks for the teachers. All I want to know is who speaks for the kids?

John A. Tamming is a barrister and solicitor in Owen Sound, Ont.

Christian Courier

Canada Mail:

PUBLICATIONS MAIL AGREEMENT NO. 40009999 RETURN UNDELIVERABLE CANADIAN ADDRESSES TO CHRISTIAN COURIER

5 JOANNA DR

ST. CATHARINES ON L2N 1V1

email: subscriptions@christiancourier.ca

Subscriptions: one year (24 issues) $58.00 $110.00 two years (48 issues)

Canada and USA

U.S. Mail:

Christian Courier (USPS 518-090) Second-class postage paid at Lewiston NY Postmaster: send address changes to: Christian Courier, Box 110 Lewiston NY 14092

Overseas $100

Advertising deadlines: display and classified advertising: Tuesday, 9 a.m. (13 days before publication date) See classified pages or web site www.christiancourier.ca for more details. (ISSN 1192-3415) Published second and fourth Mondays of the month.

Address all correspondence to: 5 Joanna Dr, St. Catharines ON L2N 1V1 Tel: 905-682-8311 or 1-800-969-4838

e-mail: Advertising: ads@christiancourier.ca

Subscriptions: subscriptions@christiancourier.ca

PRINTED IN CANADA

News

Contemporary group's 'fresh singing' of old hymns touches hearts

PALOS HEIGHTS, Illinois (BGMI) - "Under the Radar," a radio music-ministry of the Christian Reformed Church, normally aims its music at an audience 25 to 45 years old. But recently it sponsored a 10-day tour presenting a blend of remade, classic hymns and contemporary hymns aimed at seniors in nursing homes. Even in "remade form," the hymns deeply touched their elderly audiences, said observers.

Under the Radar is comprised of three Nashville musicians: keyboard/guitar-player Kyle Buchanan. The group is a part of Reframed Ministries, the English-language outreach for the CRC's electronic media ministry Back to God Ministries International. In its radio program, the three-person group Under the Radar features well-crafted songs by underappreciated Christian artists (see RadarRadio.net).

Dave Trout, host and producer of Under the Radar, also sponsored the tour. "We know that hymns transcend time and generations," he said. "We knew this hymn-based tour would provide a great opportunity to bless an older generation. Not only did we see toes tapping and folks singing along, but it helped all of us ... to reflect on the timeless truths in the songs."

instance, my mother-in-law has dementia," said Van Milligan. themselves be refreshed."

"She can't remember what she had for lunch. But as I watched her during the program she sang every word of every hymn - words that stay with us until the very end. Anyone who can refresh those memories is always welcome here."

Looking towards the incorruptible

At each event, Andrew Greer read from 2 Corinthians 5. The passage, he said, discusses how "when these bodies of ours are taken down like tents and folded away," they will be replaced by God-made resurrection bodies "and we'll never have to relocate our tents again."

Sharon Nelson, a volunteer at one of the nursing homes, River Oaks Garden, said she watched with satisfaction and happiness as several dozen senior citizens sang along to the 1914 James C. Moore hymn "Where We'll Never Grow Old."

While the goal was to serve and reach out to these different singers/songwriters Andrew Greer and Julie Lee, and senior communities, the musicians and Under the Radar staff were also blessed by participating in the tour, they said. "Residents of retirement homes have lived through many of the tragic scenarios that moved hymn writers to pen the great songs of our faith," Andrew Greer said. "And so as younger folk, we learn a great deal from their perspectives on life and the way their faith has been sustained in spite of their current circumstances."

> Julie Lee said that even though she performs often before various audiences, playing for "the senior communities was, for me personally, the most meaningful experience I have had both spiritually and musically in a long time."

Dave Trout concluded, "The entire tour was a glowing Barb Van Milligan, coordinator of Life Enrichment at the success. But, especially, it was a rare treat for us to partner Holland Home in the Chicago area, noted that hymns can be in a unique way with our oldest generation. It reminded me a living symbol of God's grace. "It runs the full gamut. For of Proverbs 11, which says, 'Those who refresh others will

Australia: Famous cardinal, famous atheist debate each other

SYDNEY, Australia (CWN) - A recent televised debate mediocre philosopher." between well-known Roman Catholic cardinal George Pell of Sydney and the crusading British atheist Richard Dawkins recently and drew criticism drew headline coverage in Australia, but left viewers split on from Christians there because the merits of the argument.

While the Sydney Morning Herald called the event "one to openly ridicule those with hell of a debate," Michael Cook of MercatorNet found whom they disagree, aimed the exchange unsatisfying because Dawkins backed away from a strictly atheistic stand and offered no guidance at all regarding the meaning of life in a godless universe. Cook concluded that Dawkins is "a gifted demagogue but he is a Dawkins was also in the U.S. he had told fellow atheists primarily at Christians.

Dawkins (left) and Pell.

Cardinal Pell is known for being a kind of evangelical Catholic and outspoken about ethical and social issues.

Alberta: Going into election, Premier opposes conscience rights of doctors

CALGARY, (LifeSiteNews.com) - Alberta Premier Alison Redford says she is "frightened" by her political rival's support for conscience rights. Redford has argued that doctors should be forced to conduct abortions and prescribe contraception, even if it goes against their beliefs.

Redford, leader of the Alberta's PCs, jumped on the issue early this month as polls consistently showed that she trailed Danielle Smith of the Wildrose Party in the run-up to the province's election, to be held on the date of this CC issue (April 23). But whatever the outcome of the election, no one expects this issue to simply disappear.

Smith told the Rocky Mountain Civil Liberties Association in August of last year that her party "will ensure conscience rights for marriage commissioners and health professionals." A Wildrose policy passed in 2011 says the party believes the government should "implement legislation protecting the 'conscience rights' of health-care professionals."

But Redford believes doctors should be required to do abortions and prescribe contraception to make sure that "all of the unique families in this province have the opportunity to know that when they're accessing services, they can trust those make it very, very difficult for us." services can be provided." She added, "When people take on professional responsibilities, I expect them to be able to meet conscience rights but it ultimately died on the order paper.

those professional responsibilities." Redford wanted the issue to be a "critical discussion point in the election."

Her stance, she said, was in favour of "diversity." She went on, "I certainly respect people's personal beliefs, but I believe in a province where we have to treat individuals with dignity and respect. We have to live in a community where we respect diversity and we understand that everyone feels safe and included."

No 'moral diversity'

Redford's views were slammed by a former member of the PC caucus, Julius Yankowsky, who represented the Edmonton Beverly-Clareview riding from 1993-2004 under Premier Ralph Klein. "If the Premier really believes in respecting diversity, she would allow for diverse moral opinions," said

Yankowsky had put a bill forward in the late 1990s to secure

Calvin College grad wins Jeopardy

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (CRCNA/CalvinCollege) Cathy Guiles, a 2003 graduate of Calvin College's English department recently competed on the longrunning television game show Jeopardy. She taped three episodes of the show which aired on three consecutive evenings near the end of last month.

The show pits three contestants against each other and requires extensive knowledge on a wide range of subjects. Information is presented in the form of answers and contestants must then ask the implied question (e.g., Answer: "The Great Lake bordering both New York and Ontario." Question: "What is Lake Ontario?")

The answers/questions are displayed behind dollaramounts on a grid of five squares up and down (with amounts from $100 to $500) and six squares across, representing information in six different subject areas. The answers/ question become more difficult as the dollar amount rises. In order to be allowed to answer, one contestant must beat the other two by being first to press a hand-held buzzer - and of course must state the correct information.

Guiles says she had wanted to be on Jeopardy ever since she was a teenager. In fact, she tried out for Teen Jeopardy at the time. She didn't make it, but "I kept trying and trying," she says. She says she would watch the show with her family and friends and she "got a lot of questions that they didn't get. I was always good at trivia. On Jeopardy, they hide a lot of hints in the clues, and I was always good at figuring them out."

While a Calvin College student, Guiles worked as a reporter for the Chimes, the student newspaper. When she graduated she pledged in its pages to one day appear on the show. She went on to earn a master's degree in journalism from Northwestern University near Chicago and now works as a copy editor for the Washington, D.C., company Smart Brief.

Guiles explains that Jeopardy holds an online test, on which she did very well. Then she went into New York City (she lived nearby) to try out in person and won a place on the show. She thinks her English major helped her, as did her entire liberal arts education at Calvin.

At least one or two answer-question pairs on each show relate to Canada because Jeopardy's popular host, Alex Trebek, grew up in Canada. Guiles appreciated Trebek. "He's really nice," she said. But "the only time you get to talk to him is during the contestant interviews and while you're playing the game. He's really friendly. You can tell he's been doing this a while because he's really professional. And really funny too."

Despite Smith's previous stance, media outlets reported that the Wildrose leader avoided direct questions about her views on whether a marriage commissioner could refuse to conduct a same-sex "marriage" or a doctor could refuse to do an abortion. Instead she said, her party hopes to set up a Human Rights Division in the provincial court to handle complaints that arise in such scenarios. The division would replace the existing Alberta Human Rights Commission.

"We want to set up a separate division of the provincial Yankowsky, who now coordinates Campaign Life Coalition court to deal with these exact kind of complaints, so that Alberta. "But no. Look at what's happening in the States with real courts and real lawyers with real rules of evidence Obama. No, Christians and especially Catholics are totally would be able to decide them," Smith said. "I support the under attack." Here in Alberta, too, Yankowsky asserted, the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, and when you look at it there government is "going to do whatever they need to to try and is freedom of conscience, freedom of religion, freedom of assembly, freedom of association - all of these freedoms under our charter need to be balanced in society against competing rights and freedoms," Smith told the Edmonton Journal.

PAGE 7 APRIL 23, 2012

Chuck Colson still critical after brain surgery for blood clot

Marian Van Til, with files from CCCW

LANSDOWNE, Va. - At CC's press time, Chuck Colson, founder of Prison Fellowship and the Colson Center for Christian Worldview, continued to take "slow but encouraging steps toward recovery following surgery on Saturday, March 31" after collapsing during a speaking engagement, said spokespeople for Colson. Colson was rushed to a nearby hospital and submitted to the surgery, which removed a pool of clotted blood on the surface of his brain.

prison. Seven months into his one-to-three-year sentence Christ took hold of him and radically changed his life. His time in prison made an indelible impression. He could not forget the other inmates he encountered and he founded Prison Fellowship (PF) a few years later in 1976.

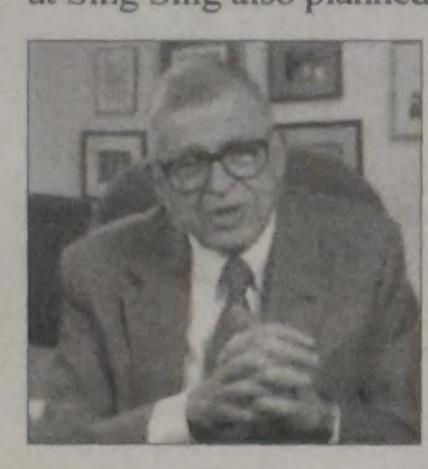

Over the years, Prison Fellowship has become a model for effective Christian prison ministries. Inside prisons, "volunteers and staff share the Gospel, disciple and mentor prisoners, and help them develop the life skills, social skills and parenting skills that will increase their chances of success on the outside," says the group. In addition, "through collaboration with other Christian ministries, Prison Fellowship's Operation Starting Line (OSL) facilitates prison events. These involve musicians, performers and speakers who share the hope of Christ. Volunteers mingle with prisoners, praying with them and offering encouragement."

Reformed influence

Over the Easter weekend, a week after his collapse and surgery, Colson hit some important health milestones regarding his hoped-for recovery. He was awake for several hours on that Saturday, was taken off his ventilator and was able to speak for brief periods. Nevertheless, at the latest update before press time (April 11), Colson remained in critical condition. Prison Fellowship CEO Jim Liske reminded all those concerned for Colson and his family that "in situations like this, bad things happen fast and good things happen slowly," and encouraged them to remain diligent in prayer over the weeks to come.

This was the first time in 34 years that Colson did not spend Resurrection Sunday in prison, sharing about the Good Colson is one of the U.S.'s best-known converts to News of the risen Christ with inmates. But Prison Fellowship Christianity after having taken part in the Nixon-era Watergate staff and volunteers took his place, celebrating Easter with law-breaking. He was then, by his own admission, a nasty, two days of in-prison outreaches in New York and California self-centered man. He worked for U.S. President Richard under the leadership of CEO Liske and PF President Garland Nixon from 1969-73 and was one of the "Watergate Seven." Hunt. Approximately 100 inmates responded to the gospel He pleaded guilty to obstructing justice and was sent to presentations by indicating their desire to give their lives to Christ. Nine more were baptized, said PF. Dozens of inmates Christ, not in any ostentatious way, not in a way that might at Sing Sing also planned to send get well cards to Colson.

Colson has received 15 honorary doctorates and in 1993 was awarded the Templeton Prize, the world's largest annual religion award (over $1 million US), given to a person who "has made an exceptional contribution to affirming life's spiritual dimension." Colson donated this prize to further the work of Prison

Fellowship, as he does all speaking fees and royalties.

Colson is a prolific reader and author. He has said he has been strongly influenced by Reformed theology, including works of Herman Bavinck and Abraham Kuyper. His emphasis on the importance of a Christian worldview evidences that, as does his own popular apologetics entitled The Faith: What Christians Believe, Why They Believe It, and Why It Matters (2008). His latest book (2011) is The Sky Is Not Falling: Living Fearlessly in These Turbulent Times.

Study shows one-quarter of CRCs using 'innovative' worship styles

Reformed Church rates among the top Christian faith could fit into the category of "emerging churches." groups whose congregations say they offer their members "innovative and contemporary" styles of worship, according to the recently released Faith Communities Today (FACT) study. Although it is too soon to tell, churches in these denominations and faith groups may be on the growing edge of "creating a new style of worship among Protestant groups," asserted Marjorie H. Royle, author of the study.

The survey reports that 51 percent of Assemblies of God churches, 46 percent of historically black denominations, 34 percent of non-denominational churches and 25 percent of Christian Reformed congregations report that they use "innovative and creative worship styles."

Worship in these churches, said Royle, plays down the role of the leader or pastor. Sermons often come in the form of stories or informal group discussions. These churches may make use of traditional candles and incense at the same time they play popular music instead of singing hymns. "Exactly what this style will look like will become more dominant as these new churches emerge within their denominations and become more mainstream," said Royle.

The FACT report is one in a series produced by The Cooperative Congregational Studies Partnership, based on a 2010 survey that analyzed responses from 11,077 randomly sampled congregations of all faith traditions in the United States.

Ben Becksvoort, director of the Great Lakes Region their church as the result of the conflict. for Christian Reformed Home Missions, helped with the GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (CRCNA) - The Christian Missions is currently supporting several new churches that

Combining ancient and modern

Royle said such churches are experimenting with combining ancient liturgies and practices of the church with liturgies and practices that are common today. This approach, the study shows, has a very practical effect. "Churches that are more innovative and open to change are more likely to be growing." She also believes that "young adults like this style of worship."

In a press conference, she said it is clear that the "main focus and experience of worship remains" in these churches, no matter what type of worship a church uses. "Although the churches reported to us great varieties in forms of worship, they said that their worship is still filled with God's presence."

The study says churches tend to define contemporary worship as worship that includes the use of guitars and drums for music, projecting videos and other materials on screens, frequency of offering the Lord's Supper or Eucharist, and the role of the pastor in the life of the church.

Overall, the survey found quite a bit of change in worship styles in just one decade, between 2000-2010. In addition, it found that 42 percent of congregational leaders said there had been conflict in their churches over worship style. Although almost 30 percent of congregational leaders interpreted the conflict as "not serious," they still reported members leaving

One of the results that "blew me away," said Royle, was the all congregations said they had not changed at all. report on worship. He says that Christian Reformed Home vast range of languages - some 66 - that are now spoken in

Britain: Following ban, Scottish cardinal tells flock: wear a cross, proclaim your faith

EDINBURGH, Scotland (CWN) -After a court recently told Britons that wearing crosses in public offends non-Christians and, therefore, must not be done, a Scottish cardinal told his Easter congregation they should wear a cross every day as a symbol of their beliefs. Cardinal Keith O'Brien has also called on all Christians to make the cross "more prominent in their lives."

During his Easter Sunday sermon at St Mary's Cathedral in Edinburgh, Cardinal O'Brien told his flock to "wear proudly a symbol of the cross of Christ on their garments each and every day of their lives."

He said, "I know that many of you do wear such a cross of harm you at your work or recreation, but a simple indication that you value the role of Jesus Christ in the history of the world, that you are trying to live by Christ's standards in your own daily life."

Cross-wearing became an issue after two women were barred by their employers from wearing crosses to work. A British court sided with the employer but the women are now hoping that their cases will be heard at the European Court of Human Rights. Nadia Eweida, 59, of Twickenham (south London) was suspended by British Airways for breaching BA's uniform code in 2006. Shirley Chaplin, 56, from Exeter, was barred from working in hospital wards by Royal Devon and Exeter NHS Trust after refusing to hide the cross she wore on a necklace chain.

Show the cross's centrality

During his sermon Cardinal O'Brien quoted Pope Benedict, who said Christians "need to be free to act in accordance with their own principles."

O'Brien continued,"I hope that increasing numbers of Christians adopt the practice of wearing a cross in a simple and discreet way as a symbol of their beliefs. Easter provides the ideal time to remind ourselves of the centrality of the cross in our Christian faith. A simple lapel cross pin costs around £1. Since this is less than a chocolate Easter egg, I hope many people will consider giving some as gifts and wearing them with pride."

When asked for a response, a Scottish government spokesperson said, "Wearing a religious symbol is entirely a matter for individual members of staff. We have no policy as an employer." A Sottish parliamentary spokesperson said, "The Scottish Parliament does not have a specific policy for staff displaying religious symbols in their work attire."

NHS (National Health Service) Scotland is advising individual health boards to "conduct a full risk assessment" to ensure that their local dress code policy "is appropriate for different categories of staff and should look to support staff in complying with both the needs of the service and any religious or cultural requirements."

churches. "Clearly, the number of ethnically diverse churches is growing. We see many more languages spoken in 2010 than 10 years before," she said.

Some other findings of the study:

- Decreasing average attendance at worship. Since 2000, the median size of the congregation decreased in every Christian denomination group.
- · Sunday morning remains the most common worship
- · Change continues to occur slowly. When asked how much they had changed in the last five years, nearly half of

Book's adaptation thrills, yet difficult to watch

The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo directed by David Fincher based on the best-selling novel by Stieg Larsson Columbia Pictures, 2011

Brett Alan Dewing

David Fincher doesn't make crap. He also doesn't make fluff. Neither is anywhere to be found in The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo. It is an excellent thriller full of very hard to watch violence and depravity delivering a full catharsis by the end credits (and leaving me to wonder what the other two books are about ... there seem to be few loose ends).

The original title of Stieg Larsson's book was Men Who Hate Women, and it's a title I find much more intriguing, apt and compelling. This is indeed the story of men who hate women. And I can't help thinking some of that hatred and some of those men could have been left out or dealt with more discreetly. But, hey, this is Fincher, and you get what you expect from the director of Fight Club and Se7en.

At its core, the film is a classic serial killer movie. And though I found the culprit way too easy to identify, it delivers enough twists, turns and killer suspense to be more than interesting. It's ironic that after writing about the lack of action in a film like Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy, I would be writing about another film that features late nights at the library and endless file boxes. It's refreshing to see detective work done in a realistically ponderous way, but the staging and score of The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo make it exhilarating as well, where Tinker Tailor became in itself ponderous.

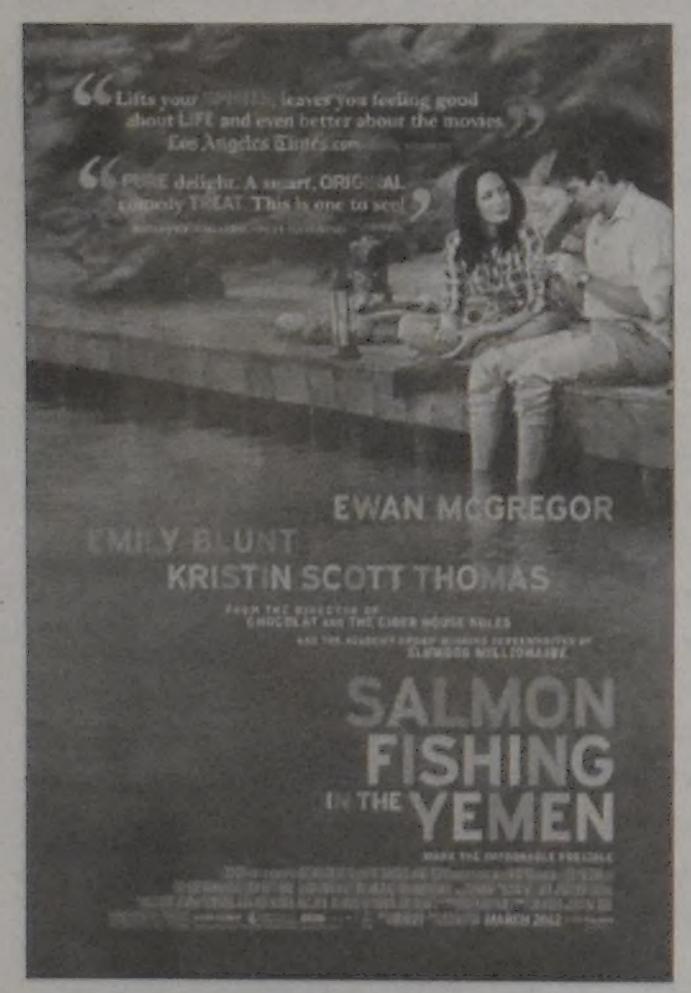

I've heard many announce Lisbeth Salander (the title girl and dragon) as the 21st century heroine and feminine role model. I sincerely hope this isn't so, as Ms. Salander is more than a little mad and is capable of great degradation and violence herself. This is no one to look up to. This is someone to be pitied, even as she works with

Daniel Craig's Mikael, being used and abused by his passivity toward her as much as the violence of her other tormentors. Dragon Tattoo is a great yarn, but I highly recommend it in edited form. If a television or airplane version is available someday, go with that. The original has so much (indeed, in my eyes, gratuitous) nudity and violence that it makes the audience just one more entity using and objectifying Lisbeth while becoming desensitized to the violence that she fights. Because she is active with men and women, we're meant to see her as sexually liberated, but the way the camera leers at that activity makes her yet another slave, not a breathing dragon but a curiosity piece written in ink and pain – in short, a dragon tattoo.

Brett Alan Dewing (brettalandewing@gmail.com) is a poet, playwright, and critic living in Warren Center, Penn. His work has been published in Windhover, hammered Out, Christian Courier, and *catapult.

10,000 North Atlantic salmon and the question of love

Salmon Fishing in Yemen directed by Lasse Hallström Lionsgate, 2011

Nick Schuurman

"Movies," writes Carl Plantinga in his book Moving Viewers, "often appeal to viewers not because they reflect experience, but because they idealize and exaggerate it." That, I believe is precisely the case with Salmon Fishing in Yemen.

Set in Britain, the film follows the absurd and fantastical vision of an incredibly wealthy Yemanese sheik to - you guessed it - fish for salmon in Yemen. Through an unlikely series of events, Sheik Muhammed, played by Amr Waked, becomes connected with Dr. Alfred Jones (Ewan McGregor), Britain's leading fisheries expert. Initially introduced by public relations consultant Harriet Chetwode-Talbot (Emily Blunt), the two, along with Chetwode-Talbot, are then approached by Patricia Maxwell, press officer for the British Prime Minister. Desperate for a feel-good headline to distract the public from the ongoing bloodshed in Afghanistan, Maxwell stumbles across a memo regarding the idea (which, up until this point remained nothing more than a dream and a plan on paper), and sets the whole project into motion. An enormous dam, complex irrigation system and shipment of some 10,000 North Atlantic Salmon are just a few of the seemingly impossible steps that need to take place.

The entire "salmon fishing in Yemen" plot is, in effect, secondary to what the movie is really about - a predictable (albeit adequately translated into the 21st century) story of romance between P.R. sweetheart Chetwode-Talbot and bookish Dr. Jones. Should she, her boyfriend of three weeks reported missing in action during a tour of duty, now look instead to the film's protagonist? Should he, bored and unhappily married, leave his wife in turn for her? That tension and those questions, I think, are part of what allows people to connect to the film, and other films like it. Because, if most moviegoers are honest with themselves, they have entertained similar doubts (Should I stay? Am I making the right decision? What if something happens to one of us?). Strip away the whole desert fish pond bit, and you are left with some of the most basic questions about what it means to be human, to love, and to be loved.

Worked somewhat awkwardly into the film's script is an ongoing dialogue about the nature of faith. The sheik - a kind and goodhearted man with something of a mystique about him - respects and tolerates adherents of all religious convictions, and acts as the film's voice of "faith," believing that the impossible really can happen. Dr. Jones, on the other hand, serves as the voice of reason. Convinced by data and driven by logic, he continually doubts that the project could ever be successful. Again, there is something deeper going on here. To return to Plantinga's thought, maybe we watch films like Salmon Fishing in Yemen, with all their clichés and predictably awful dialogue, not because life is actually like that or we actually talk the way script-writers write, but because there is something about the questions they deal with that is true to the human condition, reflecting (in a distorted, out-of-proportion, circus tent mirror kind of way) some of our most basic hopes, desires and aspirations.

If you are expecting something beyond this movie's title, don't get your hopes up. That said, it delivers what it promises.

Nick Schuurman (reviews@christiancourier.ca) is CC's reviews editor.

Feature

Dutch immigrant history and the Christian Courier

Harry Boonstra

The following is the second instalment of a two-part essay on the Christian Courier and its precursors. The first instalment ran in the April 9 issue of CC.

later united to become the Calvinist Contact) there is not one who can speak Dutch" (5/51). came from various Reformed churches in The Netherlands, they wanted and needed Dutch pastors similar congregations. Since editor P.D.K. was an indispensable source on this subject.)

congregation (Aylmer) counted members garner full support. from five different Dutch churches (3/1951). But a United Reformed church was not to be. The largest group that did not join the CRC founded the Canadian Reformed Churches.

A major issue for the CRC was where to find dominees for all these congregations. The early response was to send U.S. ministers to Canada as Home Missionaries - mainly to help start new congregations. In my family Rev. Adam Persenaire is still remembered as a Protestant saint. He and some 25 other pastors performed wonderful service - organizing congregations, as bridge from old to new country.

a rapid pace that many operated without their "own minister" for a long time. Older readers will remember the frequent reading of The founding of churches was of paramount sermons by a (usually nervous) elder. The U.S. importance. Since most of the readersof the supply of preachers was limited – even from Christian Courier's precursor newspapers among new candidates. "In the class that will (Contact and Canadian Calvinist – which be graduated from Calvin Seminary this year,

Canadian society (3/1951).

Dutch ministers. In the next decade over 40 reported on these and other organizations. pastors from The Netherlands entered the CRC. Even though a few of these may have Christian university? fulfilled Gritter's pessimistic prophecy (and various other denominations (usually more schools did not enjoy such complete support, conservative) had also been spawned. P.D.K but the Calvinist Contact does not record and others assumed (or at least hoped) that much question or opposition. There were folks would leave their theological squabbles other attempts at creating a separate Christian behind and all join the CRC. Some did. One witness and/or organizations that did not

These attempts to create separate Christian/Reformed organizations grew out language services, but they were a great Breeding society), recreation (gymnastics university. Anarticle in the Nov. 9 issue reported support to the immigrants in crossing the and, of course, soccer), government (a political party), and higher education (The But the congregations increased at such Free University). The big question was: Should the Reformed immigrants attempt to duplicate these organizations?

The question was repeated many times and the answers varied. In December 1950, for example, one letter writer titled his piece "Imitating the Netherlands?... Never!!" The author pointed out that the Dutch Christian Farmers Society might propound Christian theories, but that in practice it sided with the discussion that followed was not uplifting. farm owners and continued unjust wages for Canadian problems can be solved most disdainful and lose respect for the minister (5/1951). Apparently the Dutch Reformed strengthening elementary and secondary naturally and intelligently by a Canadian and his sermons." Besides, since they would immigrants were to be in the vanguard of education, and to go very carefully and ecclesiastical assembly" (9/1945). (See Tymen be newcomers themselves, they would not such a movement. The slow but continued slowly with plans for a university. Hofman's The Canadian Story of the CRC for be able to provide leadership in fitting into progress of, for example, the Christian congregations from extending calls to Canada, and the Calvinist Contact faithfully

The "imitation" of Reformed life in the many retained at least some of their Dutch Netherlands was seen most dramatically in accent), most of them became sterling pastors the establishment of a Reformed/Christian in the Canadian churches, as well as leaders university. This effort took longer to arrive on Back to the "various Reformed in the CRC denomination. Thus the new the scene, began with the proverbial "bang," portrays the great promise of the ICS, as well churches": Although the Dutch "state immigrants were overwhelmingly in favour and was the cause of more future writing in as its marvellous contributions to the Dutch church" (De Nederlands Hervormde Kerk) of creating and joining churches - especially Calvinist Contact than any other such venture. immigrant constituency and a worldwide was the principal Reformed denomination, the Christian Reformed Church. The Unre 29, 1956 issue carried an article audience. It often produced Christian scholarunder the bold-print title, "Association for ship at its best. But he also deals with the Reformed Scientific Studies: Een Vrije many blunders and controversies, both within That was the conclusion of 40 Calvinists And he targets many people by name.) in Canada." A few sentences later the main speaker alluded to the shortcomings of the Christian Reformed Church and the opposition already experienced from "the brethren." The Aug. 3 issue of that year announced that 38 people in Toronto had founded a local chapter never taught that God's Word is a light in all of a fine newspaper. of life. In a "Rectification" in the Aug. 10 issue the speaker clarified that he had said that the border I have continued to be informed majority of the CRC never had this insight. In the Aug. 24 issue, one of the Calvinist Contact editors, Rev. John Gritter, expressed well as taking members to the hospital or of Reformed conditions in the Netherlands. his dismay about this judgment of the CRC. finding jobs, serving as interpreters and Put briefly, the Reformed leader Abraham He called it "a stab in the back of his beloved baptizing a large flock of babies from the Kuyper and others encouraged the founding of denomination - 'my Mother.'" In the Aug. prolific families. Other U.S. ministers came Christian organizations for many areas of life, 31 issue Rev. Venema answered with a long to serve regular pastorates (I fondly recall for example: communication (newspapers response. Another article in Sept. 7 defended the ministry of Rev. T.C. Van Kooten in and radio), economics (business, labour, the new Association. Even though the CRC Hamilton). These "American" preachers at and farming organizations - supposedly has a college and a seminary in Grand Rapids, times needed some help with their Dutch some communities had a Christian Goat the Association intended to build a Calvinistic moving" meeting took place in Toronto to further the cause of the Association. Unfortunately, a number of participants took issue with the June meeting which had invited certain people but ignored others. The

Thus within six months the new Asso-One solution urged by some was the calling the farm labourers. Christian organizations ciation had elicited six articles (strongly for an American Christian Reformed minister, of pastors from The Netherlands. Rev. John were often a sham. Many others, however, or strongly against). Such reactions became he assumed from the beginning that the Gritter wrote a vigorous article against this argued that both biblical principles and a pattern for much of the history of the new immigrants would join or start CRC solution in the Contact. These ministers "may greater justice in society demanded Christian AARS (an unfortunate acronym for Englishcongregations. An immediate question he have had some English lessons and can read organizations. Besides, there was not only a speaking people; the acronym was changed addressed was the national nature of these English. But to write and read English as used need for Christian labour organizations but a later to AACS and still later to ICS - The churches. Should they just be gathered in Canada and to preach in it is something wider need in Canada for a "Christian Social Institute for Christian Studies). A year later under the U.S. umbrella, or form a separate else. This is usually not edifying. The result Movement" (11/1950). A note of realism (11/22/1957) Rev. Gritter still had the same Canadian classis? He soon concluded that a is that some preachers are satisfied with this was added when the editor observed that reservations. He raised questions and urged Canadian classis was essential, because of "the and never learn it better. And the young "in the early years one cannot expect much caution about the development of a Christian distinctiveness of our Canadian constituency. people who are learning proper English are support from Canadian Christian citizens" university. He emphasized the need for

I could quote many, many more letters and Labour Association of Canada and the articles to demonstrate how Calvinist Contact Of course, Gritter's article did not keep Citizens for Public Justice did take hold in was often the chief vehicle for discussion about the ARSS, and to show that the Institute for Christian Studies was a source of great inspiration and steady support, as well as of strong opposition and controversy. (For another indispensible book, see Robert Vander Vennen, A University for the People: A History of the Institute for Christian Studies [2008]. The book itself is controversial. VanderVennen Universiteit in Canada?" The article (in the ICS and in its relationship to its initial Dutch) opened with "This is a historical day. constituency, the Christian Reformed Church.

> My perusal of the Calvinist Contact was largely limited to the early years. For these years the CC was a wonderful mirror of an immigrant church and community. Hardships and achievements, foolish mistakes and great achievements, narrow-minded arguments and of the new Association. The speaker, Rev. generous projects, petty squabbles and great Henry Venema, mentioned that the CRC has faith - all of these were reflected in the pages

And for many years on the other side of and inspired by the Calvinist Contact and Christian Courier. It has been an excellent source, an ongoing history, of recording the settlement of struggling Dutch groups in Canada and their development into a vibrant North American Christian community.

Harry Boonstra is a Calvin College Theological Librarian emeritus and, in a former life, a harvester of onions in the Holland Marsh. Unlike much of the rest of the world, he still reads books and journals.

PAGE 10

Features

Building relationships through plants

Sonya Vander Veen Feddema

Karin Vermeer recently began a new career in horticullearn how God led her to this change of vocation and what or working with others. it involves.

How did God lead you to this new occupation?

Six years ago, I became restless in my role as co-owner/retail manager at Vermeer's Garden Centre and Flower Shop in Welland, Ont. I had the feeling that God had more in store for me ... a gentle nudging you might say! I talked with my brother, the co-owner, about the possibility of my stepping out of the family business.

ago, I'd never heard of Horticultural Therapy. Throughout to study while I was working part time.

my career at Vermeer's, I would visit retirement homes with my plants. I also talked to horticultural societies and church groups. I didn't know that what I was doing was HT! God led me to realize that this is what he wanted me to do full time.

What is Horticultural Therapy?

HT uses plants to bring about healing or wellness in a person's life. Whether dealing with old age, mental disability, brain injury, or addictions, horticultural therapists can use plants to bring about change.

All activities are centered on the client. First, we build relationships so that clients feel safe, unthreatened and cared for. Once they have that assurance, we work on focusing their energy on plant-related activities, such as taking cuttings from easy-to-grow tropical plants, or creating something like a wreath or flower arrangement from natural seeds, leaves, or pods collected in the woods.

We always work toward a goal, whether that is the clients' ability to use their hands, in the case of seniors struggling with arthritis, for example, or, if clients are depressed, allowing them to experience how caring for plants gives purpose to life. gram? The goal for each client is determined by those involved with the client's treatment, so all can work together to reach the goals of success and wellness.

What are the benefits of HT to the client?

HT helps clients restore or maintain physical abilities by doing gardening or plant-related activities. These types of tasks can also develop motor skills, eye-hand coordination, exercise, endurance and strength.

ers. Individually or through groups, clients can be encour- children's groups like the Niagara Children's Centre and aged to share their emotions and feelings. Plant projects Scientists in School. can build skill levels, self esteem and confidence. Certain tasks such as pruning and hoeing can provide an accept- How have your own clients benefited from HT? able way of expressing anger and aggression. Floral desense of nurturing.

Horticulture therapy programs are a great place for clito observe the clients' behaviours at the same time, noting such behaviours as isolating themselves from the group, tural therapy (HT). Christian Courier interviewed her to working independently, socially appropriate involvement,

> What is your educational background in the area of HT?

I have been studying "Horticulture as Therapy" under their lives that can be very difficult. Mitchell Hewson HTM, who is the Horticultural Therapist at Homewood, the psychiatric hospital in Guelph, Ont. He is the person who brought HT to Ontario, so I was very pleased to be studying under him. This course was only at. She saw me walking in and immediately recognized offered as an internship until last year. Now it's available me. She asked if I was coming to do something with plants. God continued to show me that this was the road he online (http://horticultureastherapy.com/About Mitchell wanted me on by opening up opportunities. Two years Hewson.htm). That made it convenient for me to be able > as a HT? Karin and her plants bring joy and healing.

> > What steps did you need to take to begin an HT pro-

I took the following steps: study to receive accreditation, set up my own business, contact all the retirement homes in Niagara and set up appointments to discuss bringing HT to them, and follow up with any other contacts that have shown interest.

Which specific groups have you targeted and why?

When I started thinking about HT and what groups I should target, I always thought of seniors. They have to Using plants, clients can enjoy their senses - seeing, give up so much when moving into a retirement home and smelling, tasting, touching. Herbs are the perfect plants to it has been my goal to bring plants and gardening back grow for this purpose. Gardens and growing areas, such as to them. But as I was working with seniors and retirees, greenhouses or sunrooms, serve to spark comprehension other organizations contacted me to work with them, for and draw patients' attention to growing plants and flow- example, organizations whose clients have brain injuries,

Every time I leave a session at the retirement homes, sign and arranging can be a perfect activity to enhance several clients tell me how much they appreciate the accreativity and imagination. Working with plants gives a tivities with plants. They consistently mention the fact that they are still able to create or grow something of beauty. They are thrilled that after all the opportunities for gardenents to develop and interact with others and to take in- ing have been taken from them, they can now look forstruction from the HT. The horticultural therapist is able ward to doing so in their respective retirement homes with new friends.

Recently, while at a retirement home, I had 11 women come out for the session. While I left them for a few minutes to collect other participants, they introduced themselves to each other. This particular home is relatively new so there are many new residents weekly. This is a wonderful way to engage them socially, especially in a time of Another example is a woman who has been a customer of mine for years at Vermeer's. She now suffers from Alzheimer's and lives in a retirement home that I'm working She was not aware of the HT program we had set up. In the session, we took cuttings from many different types of plants. She knew all their names. She kept repeating that > she was glad that I was there. After we completed the session, she looked at me and asked if she lived in that home and if I could show her to her room. It was so wonderful to see that she was completely present (physically and mentally!) during the plant activity.

> How have you benefited from working with plants, both in your previous career and now

> > I'm so fortunate to have had such wonderful opportunities to be able to do what I love. My love for plants started at a young age, working alongside my dad in the family business. I knew early on that this was what I wanted to do for a ca-

> > It is such a pleasure working with plants and flowers and watching them grow from a tiny seed into something that brings life and joy to people. For instance, while at Vermeer's, when customers would walk into the store, they would stop, breathe in and relax. Just being in a place where things grow gives us a sense of awe. I had so many customers tell me often that they came in to decompress and unwind. So many people lead such busy and stressful lives; plants can play an important role in bringing people back to earth literally!

And now that I'm working as a HT, I have truly found my niche. It is not a fast-paced life like I am used to. In retail there was always the sense of urgency to get things done as quickly as possible because there was so much to do or there were more customers waiting! I love being able to take the time to spend with individuals, learning about them and getting to know their stories. I enjoy building relationships with others, especially those who have special needs or have no one else to talk to.

All of this is very spiritual for me. God has blessed me so richly that I in turn can bless others. It's never about me and what I'm doing. God has given me these gifts and he expects me to share them. It's about being Jesus' hands and feet for his children, no matter what their age or circumstance may be.

Sonya Vander Veen Feddema (sonyavf55@) hotmail.com) is a freelance writer living in St. Catharines, Ont.

Features

A hard look at hunger: Report says thousands died needlessly in East Africa

Will Braun

In a January report, two major humanitarian agencies confessed that they, along with the rest of the world, responded too slowly to the food crisis in East Africa last year, and that thousands of people died unnecessarily as a result. "How come, more than a generation after man walked on the moon, we would let fellow human beings die needlessly?" asks Jan Egeland, former UN Relief Coordinator, in the report.

The document, entitled "A Dangerous Delay," was commissioned by Oxfam and Save the Children. It stands as a challenge to citizens of donor nations to examine the performance of the agencies they support. It also challenges them to understand the complexity of responding to hunger, a task that is far more complicated than just securing donations, loading maize on trucks in Africa and delivering it to a jostling crowd of hungry people in an arid village.

The report's blunt admission of failure and its discussion of complexity deviate from the usual public storyline about food crises, which tends to go something like this: hungry people urgently need our help, aid agencies responsibly and promptly distribute food bought with our donations, lives are saved and our backs get patted. There is often a twist – a corrupt government or a war in the way - but the plot is relatively standard. And misleading.

Addressing food disasters is often a logistical and political puzzle. Many things can go wrong, as happened in East Africa.

In May 2011 Dan Leonard predicted that the food crisis in Ethiopia, Kenya and Somalia would hit the news in three months and at that point aid agencies, including the one he works for, would look back and wish they had acted sooner. Leonard is the Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) country representative for Ethiopia, along with his wife Karin Kliewer. He was right, though the TV cameras showed up a bit sooner than he expected.

The media came in July - led by the BBC - and only then was the international response jolted into high gear.

Bank (CFGB) - of which MCC and Christian Reformed in North America, need to be more responsive, he says. World Relief Committee (CRWRC) are members - said his organization received these warnings and discussed them with partners. Speaking from Ethiopia, where he was on a media tour, Cornelius said that by the end of 2010 the rains had clearly failed and concern was growing. The wheels of response were in motion, he said, but "before you know it, a few months drift by." It was not until March 3, 2011 that the first CFGB funds were committed to the crisis. And it was not until mid-July 2011 – in the wake of the media blitz – that CFGB issued appeals for donations.

Shipment of Oxfam food aid for East Africa.

CRWRC committed $1.1 million to a project in Kenya on March 22 and sent out its first public communication about the food crisis on July 8. According to CRWRC spokesperson Kristen deRoo VanderBerg, the organization needed to wait with publicity until the issue was "significantly in the media" otherwise their fundraising appeals "would have fallen flat."

Saying that CRWRC has responded to droughts in Kenya "nearly every other year for the last decade," deRoo VanderBerg responded to the report by saying "we were, and always are, well aware of the situation."

A full year prior, early warning systems began indicat- Unfortunately, "by the time they do become problematic, lives. ing trouble. Jim Cornelius, head of Canadian Foodgrains then you're late." All players, including head office staff

Urgency is critical, but addressing hunger is about more

Emergency food assistance: 15 typical steps in a western-based NGO response*

Note: In cases such as East Africa, emergency response must be seen in the context of long term work to reduce people's vulnerability to food insecurity, which is an essential element of the overall response.

- 1. Request for assistance from local partner organizations
- 2. Situation assessment by NGO and partner staff
- 3. Project design (selection criteria for beneficiaries, determination of appropriate food ration, length of response, etc.)
- 4. Approval of project by government authorities in local country
- 5. Submission of plan for review and funding by NGO or other donors
- 6. Revision and approval of project plan
- 7. Transfer of funds
- 8. Selection of beneficiaries
- 9. Local procurement of food (call to tender, selection, contract)
- 10. Independent inspection of commodity for quality (such as moisture level, etc.)
- 11. Delivery of commodity to partner warehouse
- 12. Distribution of food assistance
- 13. Collection of baseline household food security data for monitoring and evaluation
- 14. Monitoring by partner and local NGO office
- 15. Submission and review of project narrative and financial reports
- *Not included are steps such as sending donkeys to haul grain after the truck gets stuck.

Source: Mennonite Central Committee.

than emergency response. Equally important are ongoing Famine is a slow-onset disaster, unlike earthquakes or efforts to reduce people's vulnerability to disaster. This is tsunamis which are sudden, dramatic and telegenic. This called "disaster risk reduction" and the "Dangerous Deadds complexity. Cornelius says it is hard to muster a lay" report stresses it, too. Manage risks in advance, it sense of urgency in the early stages because "things on advises, instead of just managing the crisis when it hits. the ground are not noticeably problematic at that point." "Early action is more cost effective." And it saves more > Assisting people in their homes is cheaper and more effective than assisting them in camps, after they've sold or lost the animals and other assets that could provide a livelihood later. And even before any signs of drought, efforts are needed to reduce risk. Drought will happen; rains will fail. But famine and starvation can be prevented if systems are in place to prepare people for lean times and assist them through those periods. Disaster risk reduction is an ongoing aspect of CFGB and CRWRC work in the region.

> Despite the complexities of humanitarian assistance and the failures in East Africa, the death toll there - an estimated 50,000 to 100,000 - was far lower than in the 1984 Ethiopian famine, in which nearly a million starved. Still, thousands of people died needlessly, largely people from Somalia where conflict and governance issues hindered the response.

> With their report, Oxfam and Save the Children have emphasized the need to learn from the mistakes of 2011. They have also set an example by discarding the simplistic food aid narrative, and entrusting their supporters with a frank discussion of the complexities of their work.

Will Braun (wbraun(winbox.com) is a Winnipeg writer whose work appears in various faith publications in Canada and the U.S.

A hard look at hunger and Emergency food assistance originally appeared in Canadian Mennonite.

Food Crisis 101

Drought: Failure of rains; a natural disaster.

Famine: Failure of human systems to respond adequately to drought. Defined as extreme food shortage, acute malnutrition, at least two deaths per 10,000 people daily. (Though drought hit Ethiopia, Kenya and Somalia, only Somalia suffered famine.)

Shipping food: CRWRC ships almost no food from North America. Food aid is purchased in the affected country or region. This avoids time delays and negative impacts on local food markets.

Global food shortage: Does not exist. Famine is an issue not of the general availability of food but access to it. There has been plenty of food in Ethiopia throughout the crisis, but certain people have lacked access.

Media: A food crisis is a slow-onset disaster, unlike an earthquake or tsunami. By the time there is anything dramatic for TV cameras to capture, it is too late to avert crisis.

Partners: In a majority of cases, CRWRC provides emergency food assistance only when asked to do so by a local partner organization. Partners have the best knowledge of who is most vulnerable and what an appropriate response is.

Disaster risk reduction: Ongoing, long term development and assistance programs intended to reduce the vulnerability of people to disasters such as drought.

Image of Ethiopia: The 1984 famine, which was a landmark global media event, branded Ethiopia as dusty, helpless and starvation-plagued - not an enviable reputation. While the country of 90 million still ranks 174 on the UN's Human Development Index, annual economic growth over the past seven years has averaged 11 percent. Construction cranes abound in Addis Ababa, the capital. The agricultural sector is one of the drivers. The government has also implemented some of the largest safety net and risk reduction programs in the world, as evidenced in the fact that though the 2011 drought was worse than the 1984 drought, far fewer people died.

Climate change: The CRWRC website says "Climate change has increased Kenya's vulnerability to drought."

Features

Our guest writers, Brent van Staalduinen and Bert den Boggende, offer some final thoughts in our series on pacifism. There's been divergence of approach, but companionable depth of thinking. CC hopes our readers have been encouraged to reflect on the challenging and complex intersection of Christian faith and military conflict. Obviously, a Reformed view of pacifism needs to integrate a wide range of historical, theological, and experiential factors. Thanks to both Brent and Bert for their explorations of this timely subject.

Integrated, holistic pacifism

Bert den Boggende

entered a relatively new territory when the first we have to testify."

the FOR noted in 1918 that its success was vision and a way of life." While human beings mixed. The London magistrate, however, paid could not implement that kingdom, "the only the staff a "warm tribute to the marvelous pa- road to the City of God" was by quickening who are responsible for it," hoping that the love, the "solvent of personality." Love, exthat the experiment's "principles embodied the beginning and end of life." Jesus' love was have already influenced the aims, the meth- characterized by sacrifice, service, and humilods, and the discipline in ordinary reformato- ity. Roberts also argued that, based on 2 Cor.

dealing with labour relations developed by between God and men and reproduced in huthe Quaker Malcolm Sparkes. As a managing man relationships. director of a London architectural woodworkers' firm he had been involved in difficult la- Peace as a religious experience bour negotiations during the 1914 industrial On Dec. 28 he declared "it was not 'paciusually characterized as guild socialism.

number of school textbooks.

Pacifism involves action

Perhaps you are wondering, "What do these thing! As Wilson indicated, pacifism involved of reconciliation. action. Sounding much like Kuyper's "square inch" statement, the Presbyterian minister Richard Roberts, in a speech at the FOR's Cambridge founding meeting, posited that pacifism needed to be integrated in all realms of life. The experiment with the young offenders was much more than a service to the country and to the young offenders; it was pacifism The minutes of February in action through reconciliation and a way to 1916 of the British Fellow- prepare for the coming of the divine kingdom.

ship of Reconciliation (FOR) This novel understanding of pacifism was mentioned for the first time an largely due to the Welshman Rev. Richard interest in supporting a delin- Roberts (1874-1945), who had moved to Lonquent colony. Since the outbreak of war there don in 1903. At the outbreak of World War I had been a significant increase in youth delin- he called a number of friends asking them to quency, especially in London, and the treatment meet at his home. They agreed that war was of these young delinquents was unsatisfactory. incompatible with Christianity, but had little They could be whipped, sent to industrial and idea how to go from there. In the course of reformatory schools, placed in detention or im- several months Roberts clarified his mind. In prisoned. A London magistrate noted that there his opinion the existing peace organizations were only three experiments trying to improve had compromised their perspective; somethe lot of these delinquents. In May 1916 the thing new needed to take their place. On Dec. FOR was able to purchase a centuries-old, 38 4 he stated that "Pacifism + non-resistance are acre manor in Leicestershire. In June the FOR by-products of some central things to which youths, aged 16 and older, arrived. Included in those central things was a vi-The experiment did not last long and sion of the Kingdom of God, "at once a social tience, self-sacrifice, and devotion of those people's conscience. Another ingredient was "invaluable experience gained" would lead to emplified in "the stupendous uniqueness of "lasting success." In 1925 an author remarked the cross, could be costly, but it was the basis, ries of the more conventional type." 5:17-19, Christians were in the business of In 1916 the FOR also discussed a scheme reconciliation, the "great social transaction" strife. Inspired by speeches given at the FOR's fism' that we wanted, still less 'neutrality', founding meeting held Dec. 28-31, 1914, he but Peace conceived as a positive force, Peace had been working on an Industrial Parliament conceived as Love." Peace, as he would later scheme which envisaged cooperation between state, was "not a military thing, not a diploemployers and employees. Only after the war matic attainment, and not a political state, but a was he able to implement part of his scheme, religious experience." The new organization's constitution, The Basis, emphasizing "doing" In addition to these activities, the FOR rather than "being," stated in Articles 3 and 4 published a journal called The Venturer, and that the condemnation of war was tied to a serpamphlets and books such as Maude Royden's vice in all areas of life, so that the Kingdom of The Great Adventure. It promoted Theodora God could come about. This new pacifism, re-Wilson Wilson's The Wrestlers, written before placing the bankrupt old simple pacifism, was the war but published after The Last Weapon to be an activity preparatory to the coming of of 1916 and The Weapon Unsheathed: A Spir- the divine Kingdom, comparable, I want to itual Adventure of 1917. It also published a suggest, to John the Baptist preparing the way of the Lord.

More recently, Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and Archbishop Desmond Tutu, two wellknown members of the FOR, though not of the activities have to do with pacifism?" Every- British branch, have exemplified this attitude

Bibliography

The archival material of the FOR is in the London School of Economics.

> Bert den Boggende has a PhD in British history and is a retired teacher. He lives in Brooks, Alta.

This unexpected love

Brent van Staalduinen

All the shades of green in the world, and we're learning how to blend into all of them. The master corporal is shell scrapes and yelling at us, her web it's going great. I'm learning all about gear heavy on her shoulders and hips field first aid, medevac procedures, and like the lifesaving burdens they truly basic trauma life support. I'm learning are. We all pack it the same - recruit to how to save lives. you to your patients?

commanded to protect?

Someone asks about the red crosses under the Geneva Convention. All of shoot to kill. our red crosses are covered in hessian show the colours but we learn to hide more penetrating than bullets. them too, just in case the rule of law gets lost on its way to the battlefield.

told you that love brought me here? not waging war, you're saving lives away?

The sergeant's mouth is so foul your out afterwards. Live. ears will bleed - mine are still burning from two days ago, when I dropped my ritle during advance-to-contact drills. He threw more four-letter words at me in about a minute than I probably heard she had an army behind her.

ever met.

I'll feel like calling home after we return to the tent lines in camp. The coin slot on the little silver plate on the pay phone will cut my hazy reflection in two, but both halves of my face will be equally filthy. I'm fine, Mom. Nice

The Statue of Reconciliation in St. Michael's Cathedral in Coventry, England. depicts two former enemies forgiving each other.

stalking amongst the to speak with you. It's hard work, but sergeant to general, medic to infanteer I won't tell her about the sidearm to sailor. Rations, ammo, extra socks, provision in the GC. Someone, somefoot powder, and a field dressing taped where decided that it would be permisto the shoulder that we are never, ever sible for medical personnel to carry to use for anyone other than ourselves. sidearms for personal defence, perhaps You die because you give someone your envisioning nice, polite pistols in quibandage, she barks, how useless are et holsters or quaint bolt-action rifles slung over noble shoulders. But the How dead are you to those you are master corporal laughs it away - You're going to carry C7 rifles so you can actually protect your patients. And they'll and the protection of medical personnel be fully loaded. And you'll learn how to

But maybe don't tell Mom. Maybe and camouflage, and our GC cards are don't share too much with anyone you stashed in our secret Velcro pockets - know, go to school with, sit next to in neither is bulletproof, and yet we stand church - your heart's not judgmentso clearly and cleanly between the ag- proof, either, and people can cut so gressors and our patients. We learn to freely with words sharper than swords,

The sergeant's on a tear, yelling at all of us after someone asked whether Would it sound strange to you if I we would be "crossing the line." You're Would you smirk a little as you stare the ones you've resuscitated, the ones at the mottled greasepaint that disrupts in slings and bandages and splints, the the features of my face, or the bayonet unconscious ones, the ones who've lost scabbard on my belt? Would you think limbs, and the ones who're going to die it a stretch, maybe, connecting Christ's anyhow. And you paint your face and mission to the glistening points of the camouflage yourselves and your ve-5.56mm rounds we learn to put through hicles so that if the time comes, you'll a human's centre-of-mass from 200m have the time to make that decision to save the lives under your care. And get Someone has to stand there, right? Someone, sure.

Someone else, maybe.

But that's me standing there, my rifle heavy, its magazine bulging with in the first 19 years of my life. He's 30 full-metal-jacketed life or death delike an old devil, terrifying and hard. cisions. That's me not fine with lethal But hearing him reassure the injured, protection, but also not fine with leavwatching his hands move so gently ing it to someone else. That's me called as he treats wounds and trauma, and to it, feeling it in my sinews and prayeryou'd swear he's Mother Theresa, if sore knees, even though I know that, in that moment of decision, it's not love He might be the holiest man I've or Christ that I'll be thinking about. It could be you.

Could be all of us.

Read more about Brent van Staalduinen and his work at brentvans. com. He lives in Hamilton, Ont.

Columns

From the 11th Province Witnessie Vein Eil

What our itching ears want to hear ous guiding principle of their lives.

major consequence to me as a near life-long of us in specific measure?

church musician, and I hope to address this issue later this year. Yet despite that, what concerns me more is the increasing lack of "sound doctrine" and systematic, biblical training of Reformed church members in their congregacommitting to sending Bible. their children to Chris-tions. That lack is also We can't all be intellectual giants or revealed in decreased academic scholars, but every one numbers of parents of us needs to be a "scholar" of the tian schools: schools that at their best teach Can you recognize it when you encounter it? sound doctrine by deepening the biblical faitheducation of the home and the church; schools especially when it comes to our faith.

No need for theology?

embracing as an alternative.

Many evangelicals and even their pastors will tell you, "I don't need theology. I need only the Bible." They react especially strongly against the rigorous theology of Calvinism, whose five main points (every one!) are wrong.

North American evangeli- But theology versus the Bible is a straw man, calism has greatly influenced a false dichotomy. God's biblical revelation of Reformed churches in the last himself and his acts in our creation, fall, redecades. That's not all bad. The demption and the eventual consummation of evangelical spirit has infused a all things is theology; and wondrously "syswarmth into many congrega- tematic." God created us to communicate protions that were previously too foundly with each other through language and reticent to enthusiastically express their faith he communicates with us in the same manner. and to give witness to the world. Some of those He made us inherently people of the Book, his same reluctant congregations were no doubt Book. Is such a God happy with our reducing too cerebral in their teaching and worship. A his special revelation to a few handfuls of stohead-but-not-heart approach allowed some ries with moral applications while dismissing Reformed church members to hang onto their the rest as remote and irrelevant? Is he pleased baptized-into-the-covenant status without truly with our adopting of secular attitudes because making covenant faith their own, and the joy- we don't know what he requires of us? Is the God who created the immensely complex mac-But there are downsides to the evangelical rocosm of the universe and the intricate microinfluence. One is the abandoning of solid hym- cosm of our own human brains pleased when nody for something altogether more spiritually any of his only-a-little-lower-than-the-angels ephemeral and artistically shallow. That's of creatures shun the mental powers he gave each

> We can't all be intellectual giants or academic scholars. But every one of us needs to be a "scholar" of the Bible. God expects it. He gets glory from it even while we grow in faith and love of him. If we neglect that or do it superficially we leave ourselves open to being "tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine" (Eph. 4:14, KJV). The damp air of false doctrine is soul-permeating. It will produce spiritual mold if we don't eradicate it.

Some churches have already decided that "heresy" is a quaint anachronism. But Paul that inculcate into students the ability to think tells Timothy, "Command certain people not Christianly and develop a Christian worldview. to teach false doctrine any longer" (1 Tim. 1:3, The slacking off of deep biblical study by the NIV). False doctrine maligns God, creates CRC - in sermons, Sunday school, catechism, false gods, deceives. It leads to the Abyss. To adult Bible study - sucks its fuel from the spirit fight it you have to believe that sound doctrine of anti-intellectualism that hovers over many is utterly important and has everything to do evangelical congregations. That flame is fur- with our lives. Paul makes that clear when he ther fanned by our society, which far too often says, "The sexually immoral, those practicing rewards cluelessness. It's now okay to hold an homosexuality, slave traders, liars and perjuropinion on everything while having very little ers are living lives contrary to sound doctrine" real knowledge (much less wisdom) about any- (1 Tim. 1:10). Then he urges Timothy, "Watch thing. We need to zealously combat that spirit, your doctrine and your life closely. Persevere in them, because if you do, you will save both yourself and your hearers" (4:16).

Paul has another thing to say about doctrine, It makes sense that members of a tradition and it's shocking. There will come a time when (Calvinist) and church (Christian Reformed) people will not only ignore but "will not put that has historically valued careful biblical- up with sound doctrine." They will refuse to theological study not just for clergy but all listen. "Instead, to suit their own desires, they members (remember the "priesthood of all will gather around them a great number of believers"?) might react against that tradition teachers to say what their itching ears want to and church if they make faith become merely hear" (2 Tim. 4:3). Sounds familiar in the 21st academic. I am sympathetic to that reaction. century church! I pray our own ears will be at-But we must carefully examine what we're tuned only to the sweet sound of God's sound doctrine that gives life.

> Marian Van Til (mvantil(a)roadrunner.com) is a former CC editor living in Youngstown, NY.

Artful Eye

Elijah calls Elisha by artist Julia Stiles

Julia Stiles is a self-taught illustrator/fine artist residing in New England. She believes art is one of the highest forms of expression and should not be overlooked as a means of worshiping God with all of our heart, mind, soul and strength. Check out her work at jestilesart.etsy.com or on her website at juliacstiles.com.

Bending the Neck

"Hear and pay attention, do not be arrogant, for the Lord has spoken." Jer. 13:15

That bent posture of bowed head the act of submitting to the designer, stepping aside to consult, asking for guidance, tucking away that arrogant moment of thinking we know better than God; the attitude we seldom voice but often manifest in our decisions.

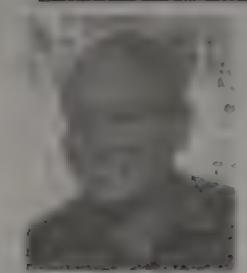

Linda Siebenga is a poet living in Central Alberta. Her latest work is Earth Against Your Cheek. Find Linda's website at inscribe.org under Members.

Columns

ody from the bassoon and then powerful out of the truck for, ah, evacuation. rhythms from the cellos and double basses.

cessful harvest.

In Quick, B.C., Western Canada, we our rite involves visiting.

celebrate our rite and go visiting.

My friend, Steffen, stopped by one day ionship accompany it. at 9:15 a.m. to pick up a seed catalogue, stayed for "a quick coffee," and left at 1:15 Cohousing p.m. By then we had solved most of the world's problems.

and I began to think about cleaning up architect of the idea of cohousing. Imagthe cowshed and planting some spinach ine a cluster of homes, for seniors only or B.C., we normally take a car or truck to do under glass. But then Lou (another neigh- multi-generational. Part of the complex is a a stop-in visit. Our neighbours work hard

The rites of a rural spring

Igor Stravinsky wrote fields and six miles away by road) stopped nal dining or dancing, for conversation and a ballet called Le sacre in, looking for Steffen! We talked about gentle recreation. du printemps (The Rite of cows, chickens and sheep, about how far

All across the logging belt of Canada, Stravinsky was evoking a primitive the "bush is shutting down" due to spring ing year as intimately connected to the tors find they have time to do all those post- shape of the mini-village. worship of Nature. I recall that the rite poned tasks that accumulated during the involved a young girl dancing herself to six months of 14-hour days. And so they That is, when we share our ideas, new pos- take planning. Cohousing tries to make death - a sort of sacrifice of a virgin that have coffee - at a café or Tim Hortons - sibilities appear; there is a multiplication neighbourliness something causal and ormay have had some relationship to a suc- and procrastinate. They talk and talk; they of creativity. Working together, the key to dinary rather than a special event. Making socialize.

cept a quick boost unless time and compan-

Earlier this month my wife and I attend-Another day. The sun came out again North America's foremost promoter and ing or short visit every day. bour who lives one mile away through the "common house" with spaces for commu- to be a community. We have neighbour-

The owners-to-be of the homes work to-Spring). He was thinking of away we were from major population cen- gether to plan the amount of private space, an Eastern European spring, tres and markets. About the quality of last garden locations, the best spot for the bievoked by a haunting mel- year's hay. About his new dog which we let cycle shed, parking areas, whether there should be a greenhouse and how to reduce energy costs. The architect and developers serve the community by concretizing worldview that saw blessings for the com- break-up. Truck drivers and skidder opera- its plans. Residents are determiners of the > cohousing, builds community in both the neighbourliness a daily practice instead Perhaps, however, the spring rite of process and the final design.

nothing to do with Pantheism or Paganism. crastination. Perhaps it is one of things that rent manifestation of the old community. norm. I urge you to check it out. Performed primarily by middle-aged men, makes life into human life. Nearly elimi- One cohousing resident chose a living (I'd write a bit more, but my computer feet from the supermarket in their parking talking.) lot, so the same walk past her neighbours would be easily possible. Another resident

In our rural neighbourhood in Quick,

A cohousing community in Nashville, Tenn.

As Durrett says, in cohousing 1 + 1 = 3. hood parties several times a year, but they of a rite of spring sounds a lot to me like have quite a different rite, one which has talking, jawing and jabbering is not pro- Cohousing may be thought of as a cur- what Reformed Christians call a creational nated from life in a fragmented world of space as far from the parking area as possi- is down and I need to drive a quarter mile The snow is going fast. The urge to getting and spending is the leisure to talk, ble so that she would be able to greet more on the road plus a quarter mile of driveway clean up, till soil, or begin a new project is to commune. Artificial methods - CB ra- neighbours as she returned from shopping. to my helpful neighbour so that I can type set back with each temporary snow squall dios, text messages, etc. - just aren't the And as for the longer walk with groceries, this article and send it off. When I'm done, or the sun going behind a cloud. And we same. Neither is coffee good for much ex- she replied that she has to park about 300 we'll have a little talking and a little more

> For more on cohousing read Durrett's noted that as he walked to the common book, Cohousing: A Contemporary Aphouse each day he passed the home of a proach to Housing Ourselves. Or type ed an illustrated lecture by Charles Durrett, shut-in person and was able to give a greet- "Cohousing" into your search engine and be deluged with information.

> > Curt Gesch is a farmer, writer, preacher and talker. He lives in Quick, B.C.

Emily Wierenga

fours and entered her world. No food, just and her body began to grow. them and her in a room, her skin so thin In saving the scruffy cat that went on to they could see her soul pulsing.

home and he was praying for she still hadn't herself. For love is this: the hormone that eaten. And then a sign: "Free kittens". He gives us an appetite to live. Without love, pulled into the drive and asked for the runt, we die. and the owner handed over a scruff of fur and said, "It won't live long." The doctor said, "Perfect."

He turned around and drove back to the place where the girl sat alone. He gave her our creator, is to know life. this kitten and told her, "It's your job to keep it alive."

To love is to live

She was six. Six years been on all fours, exited the room and of bone and skin, and noth- stared at the doctor and said, "She's asking could make her eat. ing for food. What do I do?" The doctor They stuck her in a strait- laughed. "Give her food. Give her whatjacket, this girl of six, her ever she wants." She wanted pop-tarts.

mouth like a bird's, and The little girl fed the kitten and she fed they shoved food down her herself and the doctor found this: for some beak, but still, nothing. So they called him, reason, her body hadn't been producing a doctor who loved God, and he answered growth hormone, so she hadn't been hunand he and his counselors got down on all gry. But then she began loving the kitten produce grand-kittens which in turn saved A few days later, this doctor was driving other little children, the little girl saved

God is love.

And love is life.

This makes sense to me. To know God, walls of our home; the prayer my father for the denial, the starvation, saved me. used to sing in his beautiful tenor:

peace.

Where there is hatred, let me sow love.

Where there is injury, pardon. Where there is doubt, faith.

Where there is despair, hope.

Where there is darkness, light.

Where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master,

Grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled, as to console;

To be understood, as to understand;

To be loved, as to love. For it is in giving that we receive.

It is in pardoning that we are pardoned, And it is in dying that we are born to Eternal Life. Amen.

It wasn't just a mutfin. It was distraction, Without love, we are but a clanging it was salvation, and it was mind-numbing the end, it is love we're all starving for. cymbal. An instrument that, when joined hunger so the pain didn't seem so full. I had She petted the kitten and played with by an orchestra, becomes music, but lost our child. One moment I was carrying it for hours on end, and one day later she without the orchestra, is only a headache him or her or it, and the next moment, the asked for food. The counselor, who had of sound. This brings to mind the prayer five-week-old fetus was gone, and in its of Saint Francis of Assisi, the prayer my place, a bloody nightgown and this halfmother had hand stitched, hanging on the eaten mulfin. It would be all I ate that day,

Or I thought it did, or I thought maybe I Lord, make me an instrument of your didn't deserve to eat because what kind of mother loses her child? Whatever it was, it was not food, it was a scapegoat.

> Everybody has them. Scapegoats. Maybe it's music. Maybe it's cutting. Maybe it's drugs. Maybe it's over-eating. Whatever it is, it isn't the problem. It's a way to avoid the problem, to avoid feeling.

But eventually, the muttin isn't enough: the cutting doesn't cut it, the ice cream doesn't fill us, and we're left emptier for the trying. And so now, I'm practicing feeling. I'm letting myself enter the hard, as part of my healing.

I'm allowing myself to cry for hours and days and wondering if the sadness will ever stop and if my heart will ever wring out, all the while knowing I'm very alive for it all. For pain makes growth possible, and with growth, hope, and with hope, love. And in

Emily Wierenga lives with her family in Neerlandia, Alta

Columns

Words from Wild Horses Kenny Warkenun

and she is a delight to my wife and I.

ter is learning through our parenting asally mean what they say. I try really hard later I came to experience a loving Father not to laugh when she asserts herself and says no, but at times it makes me chuckle and I have to hide my face as I explain to her that her behaviour isn't appropriate or good. There are times when I have to give her warnings and set a consequence if she continues to disobey. If I have to send her to "time out," it is the worst thing for her. She loves to be around us so if I take her to her room and tell her she needs to stay there for a few minutes it's as if life has stopped. Instantaneously she is not just crying but wailing and screaming.

TIME OUT

Giving a child a "time out"

Father.

we should view our heavenly

So she certainly doesn't like this "time out" thing. When she gets one, I reassure her that this is the consequence of her behaviour. After a few minutes in amongst the sobbing we talk about listening and doing the right thing; not because you have to but can illustrate for adults how because your mommy and daddy love you more than anything and want you to obey.

my own personal journey of "time outs." his love and the life he wanted me to live. My understanding of grace is that my So, I see my daughter who is learning right, but this love relationship with Jesus no matter what will never change. that has captured my heart and now motivates me to obey him because I want to, not because I have to. If it was just about the rules, it would get pretty tiring to try hard to be perfect.

Perfectionism

I remember walking that out early in my adult life. I didn't have an awareness of how much God loved me and the fact that he wanted me to walk in this love relationship with him. In my humanness I sought to walk in perfectionism. Some-

Time out

Recently I was talking how, I equated God the Father with rules with my co-worker about and expectations. I needed to be perfect, my two-year-old. She is or at least strive to be perfect, as much as a very energetic and talk- possible. Oh, I failed miserably, which ative child, who has what just made me heap shame on myself, I can see is a very strong thinking my Heavenly Father must really personality. She wants to hate me. It eventually came to a breaking be with you and around point and I just gave up. Seeking my own you all the time. I enjoy her personality ways of justification didn't work, and I think God my Father allowed me to walk As she grows and matures, my daugh- away and in a sense gave me a "time out."

He's given us free will, and in doing pects of boundaries. I can see very clearly so doesn't force us like a dictator to folhow she attempts to see if her parents re- low him or even love him. Many years > who in this relationship gave me opportunity to really see and know my imperfections on a daily basis. This time it wasn't because of rules and expectations, but because I knew he loved me and I loved him.

Paul writes in 1Timothy 1:15-16 that "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners - of whom I am the worst. But for that very reason I was shown mercy so that in me, the worst of sinners. Christ Jesus might display his immense patience as an example for those who would believe in him_and receive eternal life."

I know the imperfections of my humanness, the places that Jesus continues to want me to surrender to him. I see the old patterns that are being washed and restored and made whole. Sometimes I can even look back and know that when I disobeyed, God put me in a "time out." He never stopped loving This got me thinking about grace and me, but he allowed me to step away from heavenly Father LOVES me with ex- about unconditional love. Will my momtravagance. So much so that he sent his my and daddy love me if I do this? Do only son to die for my sin, to cleanse me they love me when they put me on a "time and wash me and call me into a relation- out?" Hopefully as we parent her, she will ship with him. It isn't the "rules of right begin to see her heavenly Father in a way or wrong" that motivate me to do what is that shows unconditional love, a love that the Flood and the Tower of than a decade.

> Kenny Warkentin (kennyp66(a gmail) com) works full time as an urban missionary with Living Waters Canada and is an artist and musician. He lives in Winnipeg with his wife and daughter.

Babel triggered collapse, also happening almost overnight. The Bible also ends with collapse, when our present world order, Babylon, goes bankrupt.

God was directly involved in Noah's rescue and in thwarting communication when humanity sought to dominate the earth by erecting a skyscraper. Later God started a hands-off policy; see Deuteronomy 32:20 "I will hide my face to see what their end will be." This heralds a drastic divine departure by allowing humanity to go its own way, thereby acknowledging that mankind has come of age. God's new approach is especially evident today as humans have re-built the Tower of Babel in the form of the World Wide Web and Everywhere English.

Jared Diamond, a professor of geography, wrote a 575 page book simply called Collapse (the subtitle is How Societies Choose to Fail or Succeed). He devotes one chapter Gaddafi seemed secure in their gaudy palto Easter Island, which was discovered by aces. Here yesterday, gone today. Jacob Roggeveen on Apr. 5, 1722, Easter which came at the expense of the native ten in financial markets. trees that were used for transporting logs find a substitute for wood'?"

have a similar result?

Sudden drops

Late last year Niall Ferguson's Civil- growth in a finite world. ization: The West and the Rest confirmed that civilizations do not rise, fall and then task as well - has always been the coming gently decline. Rather, their shape is more of the Kingdom, the New Creation, with the like a steep slope that quite suddenly drops redeemed of the Lord as agents of organic off like a cliff.

ry, tipped over the edge of chaos by barbar- to occur. Welcome it. ian invaders, internal divisions and energy shortfalls. In the space of a generation, the vast imperial metropolis of Rome fell into disrepair, the aqueducts broken, the splen-

Collapse

Collapse happens all the did marketplaces deserted. The Ming dytime. Come to think of it, nasty's rule in China also fell apart with exthe Bible starts with collapse traordinary speed in the mid-17th century, right in the Garden of Eden succumbing to interior strife and external when the good life there invasion. Again, the transition from seemsuddenly turns sour. Both ing normalcy to anarchy took little more

Stone statues on Easter Island

A more recent and familiar example of precipitous decline is the 1989-91 collapse of the Soviet Union. And, if you still doubt that collapse comes suddenly, just think of how the dictatorships of North Africa and the Middle East disappeared last year. Twelve months ago, Messrs. Ben Ali, Mubarak and

What all these collapsed powers have in Sunday. There that globetrotting Dutchman common is that the complex social systems saw something most astonishing, a land- that underpinned them suddenly ceased to scape with huge stone statutes but devoid of function. One minute rulers had legitimacy trees and inhabitants. Apparently the native in the eyes of their people, and the next they religion required these immense images, did not. This process also happens quite of-

We do well to reflect on our own situand scaffolding. Writes Diamond: "What ation. Don't think for a moment that our did the Easter Islander who cut down the present state of bliss is permanent. History last palm tree say? Like modern loggers, did suggests that one day everything smells like he shout 'Jobs, not trees!'? Or: 'Technology roses, the next day we experience a death will solve our problems, never fear, we'll spiral when the cozy familiar fades away like a figure in the fog.

Diamond also devotes a chapter to the With everything now having global im-Maya realm which flourished in Mexico for plications, one catastrophic event - think some 700 years starting around 800 A.D. bombing Iran or the banks owning up to A few weeks ago it was discovered that a their debts - could quite well result in a 25-40 percent reduction in the rainfall - re- global commercial collapse and accelersulting in famine - was a deciding factor in ate the coming of Judgment Day. When Maya's demise. Will an ultra-dry season in this happens we will all appear before Je-North America, the world's bread basket, sus charged with crimes against creation in whatever form. Our civilization is especially guilty of greed, the root of all evil, which results from worshipping the idol of infinite

Jesus' primary mission - and the church's innovation (John 3:16-17). Since we have Ferguson, a Harvard history professor, totally failed on that score, and, in fact, have points out that the Roman Empire collapsed actually done the exact opposite, the old has within a few decades in the early fifth centu- to go before the new appears: collapse has > Bert Hielema (hielema(wallstream.net) lives in Tweed, Ont. He keeps a blog: http:// hielema.ca.blog/

Classifieds

1952

May 9

2012

Delight yourself in the Lord and he will give you the desires of your heart. Commit your way to the Lord and he will do this Psalm 37 4-5

With thanksgiving to the Lord, we share with you the 60th wedding anniversary of our parents and grandparents.

PETER AND ANNA ZWART

We wish them our love, and pray the Lord's continued blessing in years to come.

Richard & Cheryl

Peter & Carol

Anita & Michael Mark & Dianne

David & Lynn

Also 14 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren

Address: 15-10 Wentworth Drive Grimsby, ON L3M 5G3

> Note date of Open House (Omission re: Apr 9 issue)

FRED AND TRUDY FRANKRUYTER (nee Walsma) On the occassion of their 60th wedding anniversary there will be an Open House at 4 Hawthorne Ave in Cobourg, Ont on April 29 from 2:00-4:00 pm. All are cordially invited.

Best Wishes only please.

Anniversaries

1947 April 29 Lioessens, Friesland

2012 Bowmanville, Ont.

Through God's abiding love and grace we celebrate our 65th Wedding Anniversary!

RAY AND ALMA HEERINGA (nee Feddema)

We have been blessed with:

4 children

14 grandchildren

18 great-grandchildren 2 great-great grandchildren

Address: 57 Scugog Street

Bowmanville ON L1C 3J7

Smilde, Drenthe, May 7, 1947

Chatham, ON, May 7, 2012

65th Wedding Anniversary God is good, we will celebrate our parents,

CORNELIS (Case) AND REINA FEYEN (nee Mast)

65th Wedding Anniversary together with our families and reflect on how God has blessed them richly with happiness and good health.

Jake and Lynnda Feyen, Norwich, ON Wilma and Will Rypstra, Ilderton, ON Hetty and Todd Hunter, Chatham, ON

Fred and Margaret Feyen, Chatham, ON Jeannie Feyen, Ilderton, ON Irene Stewart, Chatham, ON 16 Grandchildren and 21 Great-grandchildren.

Home address: 14 Algonquian Dr. Chatham ON N7M 5Y2

Obituaries

Maria Johanna Schaly

of Barrie, went home to be with her Lord and Saviour on Thursday, March 29, 2012. in her 102nd year.

Beloved wife of the late Walter Schaly. Dear mother of:

Bert & wife Hennie of New Lowell. Henk & wife Hennie of Calabogie, Lynn Grasmeyer & husband Tom of Utopia

Arie & wife Joyce of Orillia, Tys & wife Eleanor of Thornton, John & wife Helen of Egbert

Alida Eisses & husband John of Stroud.

Loving grandmother of 33, great-grandmother of 76, greatgreat-grandmother of seven.

Pre-deceased by brothers Arie and Henk, daughter-in-law Willy and grandson Eric.

The funeral service was held on April 5th. Her favourite psalm was Psalm139.

She always had her bible open on her knee.

Correspondence: 1698 Innisfil Beach Rd. Innisfil ON L9S4B8

Aalten, GLD

Bernard Korten

Niagara Falls, Ont.

April 9, 2012

March 17, 1930 Psalm 23

Bernard passed away at Hospice Niagara, surrounded by his loving family, on Monday, April 9, 2012 at the age of 82 years.

Safe in the Arms of Jesus

Beloved husband for 53 years to Susan (Boers) Korten. Dearly loved father of Joan DeGroot and Andrew Korten. Loving grandfather of Elena, Kathryn and Nancy DeGroot, James and Bernie Korten and great-grandfather of Violet Korten. Dear brother of Gerrit Korten (Grada)-Holland, Albert (Nell) Korten-Vineland and Gerald (Nelly) Korten-Dunnville and brotherin-law of Hermien Korten-Fenwick, Klaske Korten-Holland, Margaret (Gre) Korten-Ridgeway, and Margaret VanLierop-St. Catharines and Joe (Gerda) Boers-Toronto. Predeceased by brothers Johan (& Woutje & Inge), Henry, Willem and John and sister Anna (& John Boers) and brother/sister-inlaws Andrew Boers, Dien Korten and Bas VanLierop.

Correspondence: Susan Korten 2459 Thompson Road Niagara Falls ON L2E 6S4

65th Wedding Anniversary!

May 7, 1947-2012

With deep thankfulness, we are happy to announce the 65th Wedding Anniversary of our parents

DERK AND RIE NANNINGA (nee Weessies)

Congratulations Mom and Dad (Oma and Opa). We give thanks to God for you and pray that we, too, will follow in your footsteps of committment and love for God and each other. Your devotion to God, love for Jesus and submission to the work of the Spirit in your lives will always be a testimony and beacon of light and wisdom to all of us.

Your wedding text, Proverbs 3.5,6 Trust in the Lord with all your heart...(and) in all your ways acknowledge Him and He will direct your path

We love you both very much!

Gerda & Dave Repol (3 children/spouses; 6 grandchildren) John & Karen Nanninga (2 children)

Rick & Elizabeth Nanninga (4 children/spouses; 3 grandchildren)

Send Correspondence to:

D. Nanninga, c/o Kingsway Arms 218 - 65 Clarington Blvd Bowmanville ON L1C 0A1

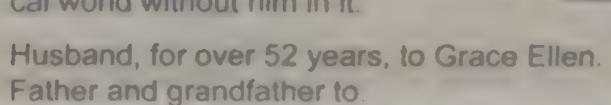

Obituary

George Rhebergen

August 13, 1933 - February 1, 2012

After a long illness, George was called into the loving arms of his Saviour. He KNEW that his Redeemer lives and he told that truth to everyone who would listen

May this knowledge, of a world of love awaiting us after death, be our comfort today while we get used to this physical world without him in it.

Peter & Beth, Daniel, Julia and Andrew Rhebergen Wayne Rhebergen

Walt & Ellen, Jake, Deb, Lizz and Rose Vanderwerf

Brother/Brother-in-law to: Anita Rhebergen (2010); Johanna (1985) & Holger Larsen (2006); Berend (1996) & Sina Rhebergen; Gerrie & Bertus (1988) Boschman; Gerald & Frances Rhebergen; Johan Rhebergen (1986) & Mary (Albert) Smit; Diane & Bill (1974) Hesselink; Diny & Sid (2001) Reitsma; Engbert (2009) & Ina (2009) Rhebergen; Henry (2005) & Leny Rhebergen; Elly & Ralph Hoftyzer; Bertus Rhebergen; John & Rita Rhebergen; Tine & Harry Houtman; Peter & Cathy Rhebergen

Brother-in-law to: Mary & Chris Tammel; Cory & Susan Ellen

Correspondence via email at: grace@eachnewday.com

Holland Concert Choir

in Holland Christian Homes, Heritage Hall. May 4, 7.30 p.m.

Soloists: Julia Bronkhorst, Soprano; Else Marieke denHartogh, Flute;

Jan Lenselink, piano; Peter Bontje, syntheesizer; Jan Verhoef, conductor.

Program: The Moabitess

Instrumental Intermezzo

Solo Soprano Colors of Grace

Intermezzo (bring your own cup)

Ave Verum

Solo soprano Requiem for May 4

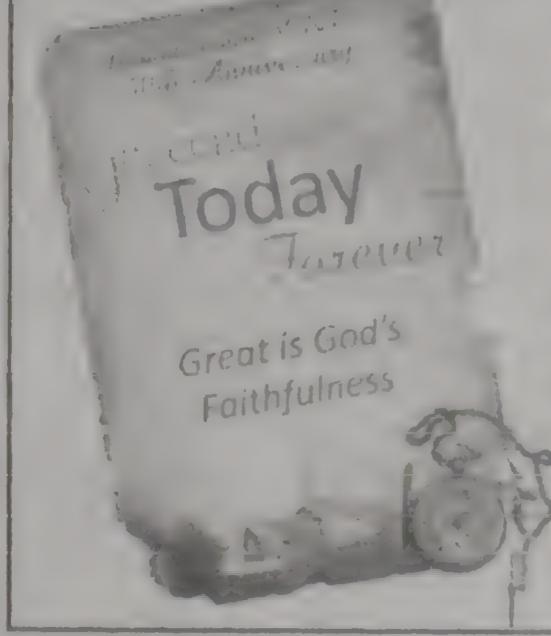

Do not miss out on this very special concert, and COME EARLY.

Holland Concert Choir

at Mountainview Christian Reformed Church 290 Main St. E. Grimsby L3M 1P8. May 5 at 8 pm. Directed by Jan Verhoef.

MOUNTAINVIEW

CHRISTIAN REFORMED CHURCH in Grimsby, will celebrate 50 years of God's faithfulness this year. We invite all friends, former members and past staff to celebrate with us. Celebration services will be held on Sunday, June 17 at 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. For more information, please contact the church office @ 905-945-0004 or email office@mountainviewcrc.org

Reading a hand-me-down copy of CC?

Call 1-800-969-4838 or email rose@ christiancourier.ca or go to christiancourier.ca to get your own Christian Courier - earlier, and intact.

GRAND OPENING

LONDON FIRST CHRISTIAN REFORMED CHURCH SATURDAY / MAY 5, 2012 / 11:00 am - 2:00 pm

Come share in the celebration of our church's new atrium and education wing. Open House and BBQ with a Grand Opening ceremony at 1:00 pm.

513 Talbot Street, London • tel 519 432-7997 For more information visit www.londonfirstcrc.com

Classifieds

DEADLINE Christian Courier is published on the second and forth Mondays of the month. Deadline for each issue is 9 a.m. Tues., 13 days prior to publication date.

RATES: All personal and family announcements: $6 00 per square inch. Display advertising re. businesses and organizations: $8.00 per square inch.

PHOTOS: There is a processing fee of $25 for the inclusion of a photograph with a personal or family announcement SUBMITTING YOUR AD:

e-mail - admin@christiancourier.ca Mail: 2 Aiken St, St. Catharines ON L2N 1V8

Advertising

Job Opportunities

Half-time Pastor

Neerlandia CRC in classis Alberta North is currently looking for a half time ordained pastor to work alongside our current pastor and half time youth coordinator. We are a large, active, rural church with a strong youth program. Responsibilities would include mostly visiting, some part time preaching with opportunities for teaching and outreach.

A job description is available on request.

Contact us at famvn@hotmail.com or call 1 780 674 6450.

Living Hope CRC in Abbotsford BC is seeking a discipleship pastor

This new, full-time position brings with it an exciting and challenging opportunity to foster spiritual commitment, maturity and enthusiasm for the Lord and for service within His church and our community. In partnership with our Senior Pastor, Youth Pastor, Pastor of Visitation and other church leaders, the Discipleship Pastor will help members in our mission to Gather – Prepare – Send.

For a complete job description, please see our website at www.livinghopecrc.ca or email the search committee at LHCRC.search@gmail.com.

Springdale CRC is a mid-size church thirty minutes north of Toronto, ON, in a rural area surrounded by rapidly growing communities.

We are searching for a full-time pastor

who follows Christ's leadership to shepherd us into the next phase of our ministry.

We seek a man who has vision, diplomacy, leadership qualities, and above all, the ability to preach God's Word in a way that brings Him glory and builds up the church. We are not looking for a miracle worker, but a man who can and will work with others so that our God can work the miracles. Our new pastor will help us reach into the surrounding communities with love and concern, so that together we may proclaim the Gospel of our Lord Jesus.

Please send your letter of interest or profile in confidence to springdalepst@gmail.com

Covenant CRC, Barrie, ON is seeking a

full-time pastor

who is committed to sound Biblical preaching and has a servant's heart.

We are atraditional and conservative church seeking to grow spiritually and to reach out to our community. Prospective ministers should contact the search committee at barcoverc@gmail.com

Pacific Christian School in beautiful Victoria, BC is searching for a

Director of Development

Pacific Christian School (PCS) has been providing faith-based Christian education in Victoria for over 50 years. Serving over 500 families and 900 students, PCS provides distinctive Christian Education for Christian families, equipping students for critical thinking, lifelong learning, and joyful service. We are looking for an enthusiastic and innovative Development Director who is passionate about Christian education.

The Development Director will work strategically to design and implement a development plan and lead the public relations and promotion efforts for the school, as we move forward into a building program and development plan for the school system. Program and position expectations include: organizing and executing a capital campaign; developing a planned giving program; contributing to strategic planning; representing the school in local churches; organizing fundraising events; ensuring good management of the membership and alumni database; building relationships with current and potential donors; and reporting to the Administrative Council of the school.

In this strategic and visionary position, effective interpersonal and organizational skills will be essential in developing relationships within the staff and school community, as well as externally within the broader community.

Qualifications that would be definite assets include:

- a college or university degree: preferably with an emphasis in Christian education, public relations, marketing, finance and/ or business administration (or equivalent education and related experience)
- strong leadership, interpersonal and communication skills
- work experience in an educational environment or other non-profit organization
- skills with database management, publications and communications

Salary and benefits commensurate with education and experience.

Please contact the email address below for a detailed job description.

Closing Date: April 27, 2012

Please submit your application, resume and statement of faith to the:

Search Committee
Pacific Christian School
671 Agnes St.
Victoria BC V8Z 2E7

Email: careers@pacificchristian.ca

Introducing Whitby's New Christian Lifestyle Community

HERITAGE PLACE RETIREMENT LIVING

- campus setting
- ideal location, walk to shopping, grocery
- onsite amenities and services
- premium design
- 2 bedroom suites from the $300's
- new release 1700 s.f.
 penthouse suites
- preferred market
 value life lease plan

SPECIAL PRESENTATION

APRIL 26^{TH®} 2 PM

PLAN TO ATTEND!

PROUDLY SPONSORED BY DURHAM CHRISTIAN HOMES CALL 905-430-1666 ext 227 • www.dchomes.ca

a tradition of inquiry a spirit of engagement

The Institute for Christian Studies is an interdisciplinary graduate school where:

- the gospel's message of renewal shapes our pursuit of wisdom;
- * scholars focus on the intersection of Reformational philosophy and contemporary scholarship and society.

The Institute for Christian Studies is seeking a President who understands and affirms its academic mission and is a seasoned Academic, Strategic and Community-building Leader.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; but Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority. For more information please visit www.icscanada.edu/president

Your funds will be invested in Christian Reformed Church and Christian school building projects in Canada.

Rates to June 30, 2012

We pay 2.75% on CRC deposits. Earn approx. 3.0% on RRSP/RRIF/TFSA

Write: Christian Reformed Extension Fund
45 Harriet St, Toronto ON M4L 2G1
Email: harry@crcextensionfund.org

Call: 416-461-1207 Fax: 416-465-6367

"...serving Christian Reformed churches and Christian schools."

* 42 YEARS *

OF SERVICE

Advertising

Vacations

Holiday accomodation in Holland with vehicle rentals and tours. www.chestnutlane.nl

Housekeeping Cottages

Georgian Bay/ Honey Harbour located 90 min. north of Toronto

A Family Vacation

At Hall's Cottages We Offer:

- Newly renovated, clean two & three bedroom cottages
- All units are air conditioned
- Safe sandy beach with instant access to Georgian bay
- A park that is great for families and a children's play area close by
- Lund Fishing Boat rentals Free use of canoes and
- naddleboats Satellite TV
- Propane BBQ at each cottage
- Discounts available for off season
- Check our web site for specials

(705) 756-2462

1-877-425-5726 www.hallscottages.com email:

info@hallscottages.com

Tax Free Savings Account

Earn approx 3 - 3.2% rates set quarterly Contact CRC Community TFSA 45 Harriet St Toronto M4L 2G1 or (416) 461 1207 or harry@ crcextensionfund.org

Grand Rapids, Michigan

CALVIN

MINDS IN THE MAKING

Sudoku 9x9 - Medium (136191040) www.sudoku-puzzles net 6 9 9 4 6 8

Where there's a Will, there's a way...

To help your family AND benefit charity, contact CSS for a free, confidential visit.

Connecting Donors, Charities & Ministries

1-800-267-8890 | admin@csservices.ca www.csservices.ca

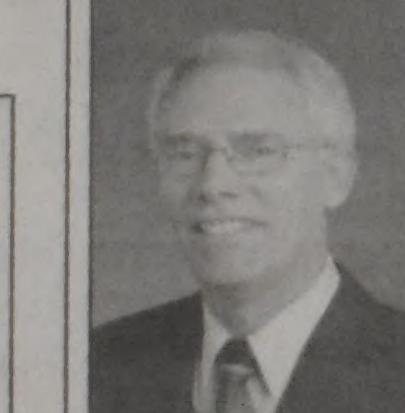

A charitable gift annuity offers:

- the peace of mind of a guaranteed lifetime income, largely tax free • the satisfaction of knowing that you will be providing a future gift
- for Redeemer University College

Blended rate of 6 - 10% (capital returned & interest) for those over 65. Please contact us for your own confidential, no-obligation quote. Information available on other gift-planning Stewardship options as well.

Redeemer University College 777 Garner Road East, Ancaster, Ontario L9K 1J4 905.648.2139 x4522 (James) stewardship@redeemer.ca

Fred Hagen Broker

ROYAL LEPAGE

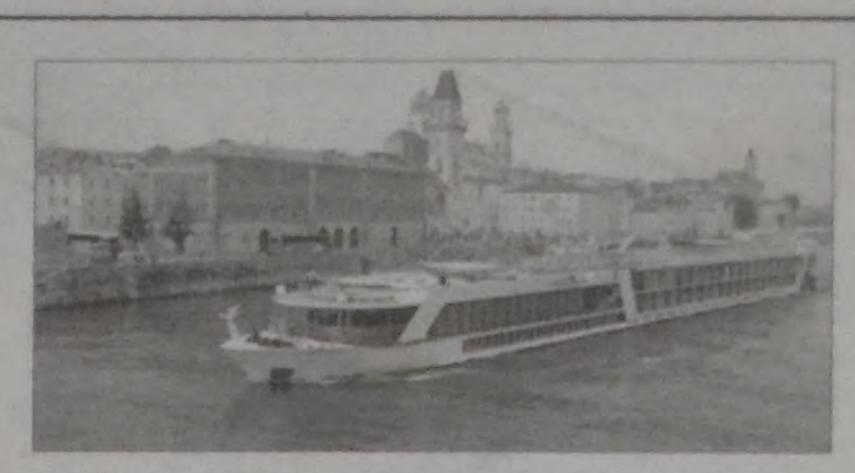

STATE REALTY BROKERAGE

INDEPENDENTLY OWNED & OPERATED

905-648-4451

Providing personal, professional real estate service in the

Hamilton area for over 35 years. Email: fredhagen@royallepage.ca www.fredhagen.ca

BOOK YOUR CRUISE WITH MERIT/VALENTINE TRAVEL

Specials include

Free cabin upgrades, shipboard credit or free gratuities on specified sailings.

Ask us about the AMA European river cruises.

Valentine Travel

905.890.5333 | 1.800.268.6144 Mississauga 519.472.2700 | 1.800.265.1141 London

Low Interest Rates?

Ever considered a charitable GIFT ANNUITY?

Rate /amount Charitable receipt Tax Free Taxable Male 5.97% $1,194 $5,791 $1,084 $110 Female 75 6.20% $1,240 $6,010 $1,202

Amount based on sample of $20,000

Sample for joint life annuity (payable as long as either person is alive) Male 75 &

Female 75 5.59% $1,118 $4,889

$1,045 $73

Call or fax for an explanatory brochure and/or confidential no-obligation quotation. Phone: 416-410-4244 | Fax: 416-465-6367 | www.linkcharity.ca 1-800-387-8146 | 45 Harriet St. TORONTO, ON M4L 2G1

De Nederlandse COURANT

North America's oldest and most published Dutch language paper and exclusive aftermarket distributor of the Libelle and Margriet magazines in its 55th year of publication.

SPECIAL NEW SUBSCRIPTION OFFER

De Nederlandse COURANT:

"Include this ad with your order.

1 year $15.00 (regular $33.00)

2 years $40.00 (regular $62.50)

☐ Margriet or ☐ Libelle with De Nederlandse COURANT:

1 year $125.00 (regular $160.00) 2 years $220.00 (regular $280.00)

Mail your name and address with your cheque to: De Nederlandse COURANT

2110 Hunt Crescent, Burlington ON L7M 2N9

GARY VAN EYK, CMA

Calvin College

1-800-688-0122

www.calvin.edu

Certified Management Accountant

50 Lakeport Rd. Ste 201 St. Catharines ON L2N 4P7

Email: garyvaneyk@bellnet.ca Bus: 905-646-7331 Fx: 905-646-0951

RAMAKER'S IMPORTS INC.

We specialize in DUTCH FOOD / CHEESE / CHOCO-LATE / TEXTILES & GIFTS

579 Ontario St. St. Catharines

Fax: 905-934-3344 Tel:

Ontario L2N 4N8 905-934-6454 E-mail: ramakersimports@bellnet.ca

Hulse & English

Funeral Home

75 Church St. St. Catharines 905-684-6346 - 24 Hours

Ian H. Russell - Director Holly Rousseau - Managing Director Serving the community over 150 years

DUTCH TOKO

European Imports

118 Wyndham St. N. Guelph 519-822-4690 Mountain Plaza Mall, Hamilton 905-383-2981

LIFE. IT'S BETTER AT EVERGREEN TERRACE

"The chance to live completely independently yet amidst like-minded people is a cause to celebrate"

LOCATED IN THE HEART OF NIAGARA. Evergreen Terrace is your exclusive 55 plus Christian lifestyle community. Convenience and easy living go hand in hand with a long and healthy retirement. Discover this unique lifestyle in a Christian campus setting where services and amenities are at your doorstep.

SENIOR LIVING ON A CHRISTIAN CAMPUS

Toin us

OPEN HOUSE

TUESDAY MAY 8TH 2 - 4 P.M.
Life Lease Option & Financing Presentation
Meridian Credit Union • 3:30 pm
275 MAIN STREET E. GRIMSBY

905-309-7888 • evergreenterrace.ca

TWO EXCITING CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP TOURS

BUS TRIP TO LANCASTER, PHILADELPHIA & GETTYSBURG

June 29 - July 3/12

5 days/4 nights. Luxury coach transportation leaving Mt. Hamilton CRC.
4 nights at the Holiday Inn Express, 9 meals, 2 shows including "JONAH" at the Sight & Sound theatre, and Beverly Lewis' "The Confession."
Philadelphia city tour with dinner at Historic City Tavern, Gettysburg Museum, Battlefield Tour, and dinner & drama presentation by the "General & Mrs. Lee," Amish Farmlands Tour with Quilt & Craft stop, & Bird-in-Hand Farmers' Market, Sunday church service, our own Canada Day celebrations! Prices are per person, in Cdn. $, and includes taxes and gratuities for local guides. $699.00 pp double occupancy, $659.00 pp triple occupancy, $619.00 pp quad occupancy. MUST BOOK BY MAY 20.

Sylvia Isaac

ALOHA HAWAII by Air, Land and Sea.

JOIN A FULLY-ESCORTED TOUR TO BEAUTIFUL HAWAII October 18 – 28, 2012.

Departing out of Toronto October 18, we spend 2 nights at the Miramar Waikiki in Honolulu.

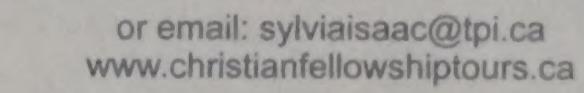

October 20 we board the Norwegian Pride of America for a 7 night cruise around the islands (with 4 incredible excursions included!). This exclusive tour is nearly all-inclusive! Prices are per person, in CDN $, and include return flights with Air Canada out of Toronto, 2 nights accommodation in Honolulu, 7 night cruise, 4 excursions, transfers AND taxes! $2699.00 pp inside cabin, $2799.00 pp ocean view cabin, and $3199.00 pp balcony. 50% deposit required at time of booking. Balance due August 6/12

LIMITED SPACE! BOOK EARLY TO AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT.
DEADLINE TO BOOK MAY 1/12.

(Note: Deposit refundable until June 22 minus $899 air credit and $100.00 cancellation fee.)

For more information and to receive a flyer, call or email Sylvia Isaac Specializing in group tours for people of the Christian faith.

Direct Line 905-765-2288 or 1-866-483-7447

TRAVEL PROFESSIONALS INTERNATIONAL 4 ROBERT SPECK PKWY 15TH FL. MISSISSAUGA ON L4Z 1S1 PH: 905-896-6948 TICO #1576226

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Apr 20–21 NILDCanada Conference, "Changing Your Mind", at Knox Christian School, Bowmanville. A warm welcome to all educators, Homeschoolers and parents to our annual conference. Downloadable brochure at www.nildcanada.org Please join us as together we explore quality learning solutions to help students with ADHD, Dyslexia and other learning challenges.

Apr 20–22 Reformed Marriage Encounter Weekend. London, ON Register at reformed-me.org.

Apr 21 Annual Male Choir Festival. 7:30 pm. Mount Hamilton CRC, Hamilton, Ont. Tickets $15. Call 905-689-5266 for more information.

Apr 29 Dutch Service will be held in the Ancaster Christian Reformed Church at 3:00 p.m. Rev. John Zantingh will be preaching. DVDs are available.

May 1-4 Growing the Church in the Power of the Holy Spirit Guelph Bible Conference Grounds, Guelph, ON For information please visit dunamisfellowshipcanada.org For an event brochure, contact dfc@dunamisfellowshipcanada.org or 519-821-3603

May 5–6 Grace Christian Reformed Church, Welland ON will celebrate its 50th Anniversary. Join us for a Lasagne Dinner on Saturday and a Worship Celebration on Sunday. Contact mieuwold@becon.org for more information.

May 4 Noon Organ Recital Series (seventh season) St. Jude's Anglican Church, Brantford. Every Friday in May at 12.15 p.m. Free. Featuring Stephanie Burgoyne and William Vandertuin in Organ solos and "Organ four hand" selections.

May 5 Holland Concert Choir directed by Jan Verhoef at Mountainview Christian Reformed Church 290 Main St. E. Grimsby L3M 1P8. at 8 o'clock.

May 4 Holland Concert Choir in Holland Christian Homes. See ad.

May 11 Noon Organ Recital Series (seventh season) St. Jude's Anglican Church, Brantford. Every Friday in May at 12.15 p.m. Free. Featuring Andrew Keegan Mackriell, Director of Music: St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral.

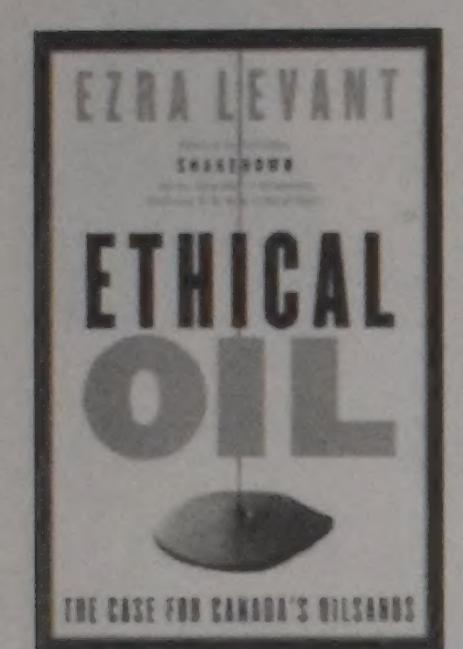

May 18 Noon Organ Recital Series (seventh season) St. Jude's Anglican Church, Brantford. Every Friday in May at 12.15 p.m.

May 25 Noon Organ Recital Series (seventh season) St. Jude's Anglican Church, Brantford. 12:15 p.m. Free. Featuring Joel Vanderzee, Organist Choirmaster St. John's - Kilmarnock School, Breslau.

June 8–9 Immanuel Christian Schools of Lethbridge, Alberta, will celebrate 50 years of God's goodness. For more information, please call the business office at (403) 327-4233 or visit our website at www.immanuelchristian.org

June 13 Hollandse Dag, Moorefield Community Centre. See ad next issue.

The shrivelled moral universe of ethical oil

Ezra Levant's Ethical Oil suggests that individual freedom is the absolute good.

John Hiemstra

the oilsands as "ethical erate and fulfill creation! oil." The phrase seems to have caught on. To- Redeeming ethical oil day, many of us think America's real choice is between Canada's "ethical oil" or "unethical oil" from tyrannous nations like Saudi Arabia, Nigeria, or Iran.

Is this a healthy development? Should Christians join the ethical oil parade?

Biblically attuned Christians are obviously re- of genuine wellbeing? ceptive to ethical arguments. In a rapidly secularizing society, it is heart-warming to hear ethics play of truth in the ethical oil argument. The moral bewhether or not we buy their products.

ethics of buying billions of dollars worth of goods American lifestyle? and other religions like Falun Gong.

majority in a democratic legislature. Then, society, ergy jobs or dirty, fossil fuel jobs? groups, oil and investment companies must obey cally, but because the human majority does. In Levant's moral universe, humans are the real ultimate source of norms and values.

from the Christian narrative. All of creation is pic-

CONFLICT OIL ETHICAL OIL FUNDS TERRORISM

Ads try to convince us that there is 'Ethical oil'.

tured simultaneously as "gift" and "call" directly The idea of "ethical from God. Thus, creation is charged with God's noroil" entered Canadian mativity. Humans are created in God's image, and politics like a lightning therefore are response-able, that is, able to receive bolt! The oilsands were and answer God's gifts and calls in their lives.

being branded "dirty For liberals, this is a very oppressive universe oil" by environmen- indeed, because laws and norms are automaticaltal critics at home and ly seen as external limits on human freedom. But abroad, when, out of the Scriptures characterize God's laws or norms as conblue, Environment Min- ditions for freedom. They point us down the paths ister Peter Kent took a of becoming truly human, of flourishing as human cue from lobbyist Ezra community, and of culturing creation to blossom. Levant and reframed For Christians, following God's norms serves to lib-

A Christian ethical framework ought to ask difficult questions that ethical oil ignores. Do we really need more oil? Have we developed a way of life based on sprawling suburbs, automobile dependency, globalized economic trade and industrialized agriculture that demands far too much oil? Has our lifestyle become overly materialistic at the expense

Are we happier now just because we are richer than we were in the 1960s? Will ever-increasing maa major role in public debate! And there is a spark terial things and consumption truly make us happy? Is it good that corporations and advertising firms haviour of countries should have some influence on are empowered to create new, artificial needs within us? Is it right that the world's depleting oil, as well Our confessional smoke detectors should start as natural resources, are used to satisfy our trivial buzzing, however, when we notice how narrowly wants for the latest edition of electronic gadgets, ethics are conceived of in this approach. Ethical oil throw-away products, excessively large homes, and proponents want to use ethics to sell Canadian oil- oversized cars? Can the world sustain seven billion sands products, for example, but are silent on the people (and growing) if we all live a wasteful North from China when it obviously oppresses Christians And there are more profoundly ethical questions. Is it true that human science and technology The moral universe of ethical oil is very low can guarantee progress and engineer a path to ulgrade and crude. A close reading of Ezra Levant's timate human happiness? Is it true that continuous book Ethical Oil shows he believes individual free- economic growth, advocated by almost all political dom is the absolute good. Only a free autonomous parties, is the only way to generate the tax revenues individual [literally, a law (nomos) to oneself (auto)] needed to pay for social and health programs? Or may create ethics for him/herself. Ethical require- can flourishing social and health conditions be enments only limit individual freedom. This may only couraged in other ways? Is it ethical to suggest our legitimately occur, Levant assumes as a philosophi- choice is between oilsands jobs or no jobs, when our cal liberal, if ethical requirements are created by a real choice is between creating clean alternative en-

The ethical oil approach is too narrow. It is serithese ethics. Not because God wants us to act ethi- ously mistaken to assume these larger ethical questions will limit human freedom. God's norms point us to life! Finally, is it ethical for the ethical oil framework to deliberately avoid these big questions at the A dramatically different moral universe emerges very moment that the groaning of God's good creation grows louder and louder around the globe? We > owe it to God, our grandchildren and to future generations to debate and faithfully answer these questions.

John Hiemstra teaches Political Studies in the interdisciplinary 4-year program "Politics, History & Economics" at The King's University College in Edmonton. He is a graduate of the Institute for Christian Studies

(MA) and the University of Calgary (PhD).

Odds and Trends

Ikeaville?

Do you sit in a Poäng or eat your dinner on a Bjursta? If so, you're probably a fan of the Swedish furniture company Ikea. Ikea is the world's largest furniture retailer, and at least a few of their ready-to-assemble products can be found in most homes. Not everyone knows, however, that in addition to furnishing homes Ikea also builds them. Customers in Scandinavian countries and the U.K.

can purchase Ikeamade BoKlok flat-pack houses that attempt to offer "more housing for less money." The company's latest venture, then, is perhaps the inevitable next step: an Ikea owned, built and managed urban neighbourhood in London,

England's post-industrial east side. The neighbourhood, which will be called "Strand East," will offer mixed income housing in which residents are effectively tenants of Ikea. In keeping with the company's penchant for neatness and order, these residents will be subject to certain rules and standards of cleanliness and behaviour. Sounds kind of like living in an Ikea store.

New Da Vinci painting

One thing you won't find at Ikea is a previously undiscovered painting by Leonardo Da Vinci. In fact, you aren't very likely to find one of these anywhere since no new paintings by the Renaissance artist have been authenticated for more than 75 years. That is, until now. Maybe. When Peter Silverman, a Canadian art collector, saw a Renaissance-style portrait of a young woman that reminded him of Da Vinci's work in a New York art gallery, he bought it immediately for $21,850. The painting may now be worth $100 million. Silverman sent a digital image of the painting to Martin Kemp, a world-renowned Da Vinci scholar. Kemp frequently receives bogus pointers toward undiscovered Leonardo paintings, but something seemed different about Silverman's painting. After a great deal of sleuthing, carbon-dating, and, eventually, a trip to the national library of Poland to examine a very rare book, Kemp came to believe that the portrait is a genuine Da Vinci.

Extreme kitchen chemistry

The science involved in determining the age of a painting is relatively benign, but some scientific procedures are dangerous enough to warrant laws against attempting them yourself. A Swedish man named Richard Handl learned this the hard way after he was arrested for trying to split the atom in his kitchen. After a failed experiment in which he cooked up a mixture of americium, radium, sulphuric acid and beryllium in a saucepan (the next step would have been to fire a neutron ray into neutrons harvested from the concoction), it occurred to Handl that there might be some kind of prohibition on conducting nuclear physics in one's kitchen. Before staging a second attempt, Handl sent off an e-mail to the Swedish Radiation Authority asking if his experiment broke any laws. It wasn't long before the police arrived. Handl is now prohibited from conducting home experiments, both by the state and by his landlord.

As crazy as all this sounds, Handl isn't the first person to attempt this sort of thing. In the early 1990s an American named David Hahn wrote to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission pretending to be a high school physics teacher and requesting information on how to split the atom. With the help of the pamphlet he received Hahn was able to turn his garden shed into a nuclear reactor, at least until he was shut down by a group of police officers who descended on the radiation-filled shed wearing protective suits. All of this, of course, gives new meaning to the phrase "don't try this at home."

Michael Buma